RAF Blasts Danzig Base In Daring Daylight Attack

COVERALL GIRL—Pretty Elizabeth Schoggen, of Lubbock, Texas, prefers air force coveralls these days. Her husband, First Lieutenant Elmer Schoggen, is piloting a B-17 over the Pacific as the little wife goes about her work as technical inspector at an air force advanced flying school in Texas where her efficiency helps the cadets.

U-Boat Center Bombed on Trip Of 1,750 Miles

LONDON, July 12.—(AP)—Striking a body blow in the battle of the Atlantic, a squadron of four, four-motored British bombers roared over Germany on a 1,750-mile daylight round trip late yesterday to blast the German submarine building base at Danzig on the Baltic.

In this longest and most daring RAF daylight operation of the war, Britain's newest and highly secret Lancasters loosed their devastating cargoes, then made a secondary attack upon Flensburg, another Nazi submarine spawning ground, on the German-Danish border 400 miles across the Baltic from Danzig.

"The attack was made from well below the cloud base and the yards were heavily bombed," the air ministry said of the first raid upon the German submarine base.

FAMILY AFFAIR—Here we see a flying son greeted by a colonel in Cairo after the July 4 raid on Tobruk in which U. S. forces participated. "Well, son, you had a different sort of firecracker to set off this Independence Day," Colonel Floyd W. Shumaker, U. S. Army, tells his son, First Lieutenant Tom A. Shumaker, navigator on a U. S. bomber.

Price Ceilings To Get Test in Senate Ballot

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The senate will take up tomorrow legislation which Price Administrator Leon Henderson contends may decide the fate of much of the price ceiling structure, a prime part of the anti-inflation program.

The measure is a house-approved appropriation bill for a dozen war agencies, including the Office of Price Administration.

Henderson's original request for more than $200,000,000 to operate his agency, the house approved a $75,000,000 fund, but the Senate Appropriation Committee lifted that to $120,000,000.

In acting on the OPA section, the senate committee adopted amendments, however, which Henderson asserted would "repeal" the over-all price ceiling on consumer goods.

Henderson, in a statement last night, denounced these "crippling" amendments and charged, furthermore, that they would "inject politics" into price and rationing control by requiring senate confirmation of the appointment of OPA employees earning more than $4,500 a year.

Objection Raised. He made particular objection to one amendment which would prevent OPA from establishing price ceilings on any commodity made in whole or in part from a farm product unless the price of the product reflected 110 per cent of parity.

The latter is a price giving farm produce the same purchasing power it had in a past period, usually 1909-14. He said the American Farm Bureau Federation drafted this amendment.

The situation was potential of prolonged and bitter senate debate. Farm sentiment in the senate is strong. Individual senators already have complained about some of Henderson's appointments to his staff, saying that in some instances the OPA chief was giving jobs to their political opponents.

The long-disputed farm bill also is to get renewed attention tomorrow when the senate and house conferees meet once more, but there was no indication of an immediate agreement on the No. 1 question—whether the government will be allowed to sell surplus grain at prices below parity for livestock feed. The house voted against that, the senate for it and President Roosevelt has demanded that the house recede from its stand.

Three Weeks Left. By virtue of a resolution continuing the Department of Agriculture appropriations throughout July, the conferees have nearly three legislative weeks to resolve their differences.

Should the long deadlock continue, however, there was a possibility that members of the conference might report themselves in disagreement and ask to be discharged. In that case it was believed likely that an entirely new set of conferees would be named, bringing in members free from animosities engendered in weeks of fruitless meetings.

The house, too, is confronted with the prospects of sweat and tears this week. Leaders want to start that branch to work on Thursday on the $6,250,000,000 tax bill on which the Ways and Means Committee completed action yesterday.

ECHO IN U. S. A.—Excitement is a mild word to describe the sensation of Mrs. Floyd N. Shumaker, right, and her daughter, Nancy Jean, of Denver, Colo., on seeing an AP wirephoto of Mrs. Shumaker's husband and son, made in Cairo after the younger Shumaker took part in a raid.

Japs Capture New Foothold On China Coast

CHUNGKING, China, July 12.—(AP)—The Japanese have occupied Futou Island, near Foochow in Fukien province, and have started a pincers movement against Wenchow, one of the few important ports on the China coast still in Chinese hands, the high command announced today.

(Tokyo Radio broadcast a Domei Japanese news agency report that Wenchow, in Chekiang province, had been captured after a five-day offensive eastward from Lishui. Domei described Wenchow as "an important secret Chinese supply base.")

Japanese planes have been actively scouting Fukien province in the last few days, but Chinese sources said it was too early to predict whether the landing preceded developments in that province.

Fukien is on the coast opposite the island of Formosa, one of Japan's most important troop centers and training grounds.

The Japanese landed troops at Julian, on the Chekiang coast 13 miles southwest of Wenchow, across a peninsula, laid down a heavy bombardment of the city Friday night. The Japanese landing party was fiercely engaged by the Chinese before it took the city.

The Chinese acknowledged that Japanese soldiers from Lishui captured Tsingtien, 22 miles northwest of Wenchow and 30 miles southeast of Lishui.

The junction of the two Japanese forces—at Julian and Tsingtien, 35 miles apart—would mean that nearly the whole eastern part of Chekiang province would be embraced by the Japanese ring.

In the interior Hupei province, Chinese dispatches said, Chinese forces swept down from the southern slopes of the Tachien mountains and captured the towns of Hwangmei and Kwangtai on July 1.

Aussies Join Allies In Africa, Advance

CAIRO, July 12.—(AP)—The British Army of the Nile, spurred by reinforcements of eager Australians, had driven the Axis corps 10 miles west of El Alamein today and consolidated its new hold in the Tel El Eisa sector of Egypt after capturing 2,000 tired Germans and Italians and destroying 18 tanks.

Mobile columns and artillery dealt with enemy tank sorties on the central sector of the 50-mile desert front which now lies 75 miles from the great naval base at Alexandria. German movements reported Friday on the extreme southern sector near the torrid Qattara Depression degenerated into "light enemy activity."

Guns and motor transport vehicles also were captured in the successful British drive along the Mediterranean.

(The British radio, quoting from its African correspondents, said a further advance was made by the British Sunday morning and that 700 more prisoners were taken. The broadcast was heard by CBS.)

Australian shock troops participated in the British coastal push, many of the Aussies charging into bayonet attacks early Friday morning before the general advance order was given.

Front dispatches said the return to the desert of these excellent fighting men after many months' absence already had terrified the Italians.

One captured Italian officer was quoted as saying: "We fought until they were 30 yards from us. Then we found they were Australians, so we surrendered."

The Australians, who delight in close-quarter fighting, were equipped with new antitank guns which they were using at shorter range than usual.

To the south and west of the Alamein line the South Africans, New Zealanders and other British units had thrown a line across the desert.

But fighting in that area was said to have diminished as German tank units shifted their weight northward to counter the British coastal spearhead. British armored units also changed their direction to stalk the Nazis.

Dispatches gave this picture of the Australian assault on the Italians: "The Fascists were not very well dug in, and the Aussies overran position after position, grabbed Italian machinegun posts at the bayonet point, swung the guns around and trained them on other Italian units to the west."

In some instances the Australians were far ahead of their supporting tanks. Their predawn assault was such a surprise that their losses were comparatively light, many Italians still were in their tank beds when captured.

The British said large-scale air battles developed as Marshal Rommel threw in "large formations of bombers and fighters" in an attempt to block the British advance, and that one clash with "some 40 German bombers and dive bombers and 20 enemy fighters" took place.

Axis transport, including staff cars, was raked by Allied planes and five vehicles were known to have been destroyed.

The Axis partners attested to the hard fighting under the molten desert sun. The Italian communiqué said repeated coastal attacks "gave rise to hard fighting which still is in progress."

The Germans said "heavy fighting in the El Alamein sector is continuing."

Willkie Urges War Be Taken to Enemy

LIDICE, III, July 12.—(AP)—Wendell Willkie called upon the freedom-loving peoples of the world today to remember Nazi-razed Lidice and banish "the madness of tyrants" from the earth.

He spoke at ceremonies during which this community of 100 new homes in the hills north of Joliet was given the name Lidice in memory of the martyrs of Lidice, Czechoslovakia, a village destroyed by the Germans in reprisal for the slaying of Hitler's hangerman, Reinhard Heydrich.

Willkie said the Nazis had shot 500,000 persons in Europe—25,000 of them in mass massacres—and that Poland, Norway, Belgium and Yugoslavia had their "Lidices," but that the destruction of the Czech hamlet stood as a "symbol of all."

"While such deeds as Lidice are done in another country, we cannot rest until we are sure that they will never be done in our own," he stated in a prepared address.

"Let us highly resolve that the memory of this little village of Bohemia, now resurrected by the people of a little village in Illinois, will fire us, now and until the battle is over, with the iron resolution that the madness of tyrants must perish from the earth."

Asserting destruction of tyranny was necessary "that the earth may return to the people to whom it belongs, and be their village, their home, forever," he added: "But their great objective cannot be accomplished unless every citizen of this country learns to think in terms of attack."

"For we must carry the battle to the enemy. We must fight him on his own grounds. 'We must win a total victory.' He asserted more than 200 men and 56 women were killed, the 90 homes were burned and the church demolished. The Nazis' motive for the most terrible deed since the dark ages, he reasoned, was their fear "because the free spirit in men had refused to be conquered." But in blacking out the tiny settlement, he added, they had kindled a flame "which can never be extinguished."

Two Towns Fall In Swift Drive, Soviets Admit

MOSCOW, Monday, July 13.—German troops, sweeping through Kantemirovka and Lisichansk in their push toward the Caucasus, have rolled the Red Army back 70 more miles to Boguchar in the greatest penetration yet of Russian soil, the Soviets acknowledged officially today.

Only in the Voronezh sector at the upper end of the 200-mile Don front were the Russians giving ground slowly. But the Russians admitted that the Germans in their great 1942 offensive were hammering at the gates of that city, too, which is a key point of the Moscow-Rostov railway.

The Kantemirovka-Lisichansk break-through definitely threatened to split the central and southern Red Armies and appeared to be the prelude to fighting for the rich Caucasus oil region itself.

Savage Delaying Action. The Red Army was reported fighting a savage delaying action and taking an enormous toll of German men and machines.

But the emerging, critical fact here was that the German's fast were getting into a position to wheel southeastward down the Don valley to Stalingrad astride the important Volga river linking the Caucasus with central Russia.

Boguchar is 50 miles east of a line drawn due north of Rostov, the southern anchor of the Red line, which thus far has held the Germans pushing along the Sea of Azov. Rostov, which the Germans reached last year and then had to leave, was the previous high-water mark of eastward invasion.

The crumpling of Voronezh, which the Germans had claimed they captured nearly a week ago, would release a still larger Nazi flood over the steppes of ancient Voronezh province and make the Red Army's liaison still more difficult.

Massed Assaults. News dispatches telling of the grave position of the Red Army in the Voronezh area said the Germans were throwing wave after wave of men and machines across the Don river which is only a few miles west of Voronezh.

The communiqué acknowledging the German penetration said today: "During July 12 our troops on the outskirts of Voronezh carried out fierce battles against the enemy."

"Our troops evacuated Kantemirovka and fought in the area of Boguchar."

"Our troops also carried out battles in the district of Lisichansk, upon order of the command our troops evacuated Lisichansk in order to occupy new positions."

Historic Savagery. Thousands of German troops fell on the front yesterday, 76 Nazi tanks were destroyed, and scores of airplanes were brought down, official Soviet reports said.

One of the most savage battles of history was being fought on the bleak steppes of Russia, news accounts said.

Before Voronezh, the lines changed several times yesterday, and the whole picture was a mass of struggling and dying men, burning tanks and exploding mine fields which the Russians have sowed so liberally in their withdrawals. The Soviets said they

Cooling Showers Predicted Today

More hot weather for Atlanta is expected today, Glen Jefferson, regional meteorologist, said yesterday, but he gave some encouragement by predicting showers in the afternoon to cool things off.

The maximum temperature yesterday was 94 degrees, he said, and the minimum was 74 degrees.

RAF Continues Raiding Japs Moving on India

NEW DELHI, India, July 12.—(AP)—The RAF continued its activity against Japanese forces moving toward India along the Chindwin river in Burma, by attacking Kalewa and hitting a steamer south of Sittang, the British announced today. The attacks took place Thursday and Friday.

Soviet Raiders Using Liquid Fire Bombs

HELSINKI (From Finnish Broadcasts), July 12.—(AP)—Russian bombers were said by the Finns today to be using liquid fire bombs and phosphorus pellets in lively activity over the Anus isthmus and the shores of Lake Ladoga.

The report said nine planes dropped narrow tubes of liquid fire over residential sectors on Lake Ladoga.

Seaman Visits German U-Boat as First Aid Patient

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

An injured seaman, one of 24 survivors of a small Panamanian merchant vessel torpedoed recently in the Caribbean, was taken aboard the enemy submarine and given first aid treatment by a German physician, the Navy's announcement of the sinking yesterday disclosed.

Reports of the latest U-boat attack boosted the unofficial Associated Press count of Allied and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic since December 7 to 360 merchantmen.

Survivors of the Panamanian vessel said that following the torpedoing, gunners waited until the submarine surfaced, then fired one shell at the undersea craft, but missed. The raider crash-dived and surfaced again only after the ship had gone down. The submarine commander ordered the wounded seaman brought aboard and a physician treated the crewman's injuries.

One man was killed in the torpedo explosion, but the others landed their lifeboats on an island two days later.

Official announcements last week disclosed the destruction of 22 merchant vessels in western Atlantic waters in which 121 lives were lost. Eight persons were reported missing. More than 725 crew members and passengers, however, were rescued and landed safely at United States and Caribbean ports.

Included in last week's announcements were six American vessels, six British, three Norwegian, one Cuban, one Dutch, one Latvian, one Belgian, one Honduran, one Greek and one unidentified Allied.

Fish Oil in Desert Wells Quickly Solved by Nazis

CAIRO, Egypt, July 12.—(AP)—The Germans did not take long to solve the riddle of fish oil in desert wells.

Rather than destroy wells in their withdrawal, since they could be quickly dug again, the British poured in fish oil to make unpalatable the few water spots in the desert.

But the British found on regaining territory in the El Alamein sector that the Germans had quickly re-established the wells with a special apparatus for extracting the fish oil.

Bolivia, U. S. To Sign Pact on Sale of Rubber

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 12.—(AP)—A contract for the sale of the entire Bolivian rubber production, expected to amount to 3,000 tons in 1943, will be signed tomorrow by Foreign Minister Eduardo Anze and United States Ambassador Pierre de Boal.

The United States will pay 45 cents a pound under the contract, which will run for several years, and will furnish $2,125,000 for the opening of roads, development of new plantations and hygienic measures in the producing areas. Argentina and Uruguay had been bidding for Bolivia's rubber.

NAMED IN WILL—Husky, a little black terrier, has become the possessor of a house and automobile, under terms of a will left by its owner, Maggie Mae White, 77, who died June 13 in Los Angeles. The will stipulates the dog is "to sleep in our bed, eat good lean round steak cooked and fed to him warm, drink clean fresh water, and never be scolded or whipped." Husky also receives an expensive automobile and is to be taken for rides.

Axis Doomed By U. S. Output, Knudsen Says

General Sees Staggering Outpouring of Weapons.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 12.—(AP)—America's genius for production—production far beyond the tremendous progress the nation already has achieved—will inevitably crush the Axis under a staggering outpouring of weapons. Lieutenant General William S. Knudsen told 200 war manufacturers here today following a Sunday tour of plants operating at full tilt.

"We are slow to get mad and around because of it, but I think we have taken a little bounding up for Hitler and the others," the chief of Army war production declared. "One of our greatest advantages is the delight American manufacturers have always taken in setting up 'impossible' quotas and then exceeding them."

Knudsen declared that "little by little we are getting everyone in the country into the total war effort, which is as it should be."

"It is going to be a long, hard struggle and we have hardly scratched the surface," he said. "But beyond any question, we are going to win, no matter how long it takes."

Headlining the major phases of the production effort as materials, labor, design and tooling, Knudsen declared there was "no real cause for worry" over a material shortage.

"We have more steel than the Axis, more copper, more aluminum—plenty of everything we need except rubber, and we are going to have rubber, too, in good time," Knudsen said.

He paid warm tribute to the women of the country for the "all-important" role they are playing in the production effort, declaring they had helped to prevent a labor shortage that was imminent a few months ago.

Knudsen will complete an eight-day tour of Michigan war plants in Muskegon tomorrow.

Large Grant Is Made for Polio Study

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has made a five-year, $300,000 grant to Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, for a study of infantile paralysis and related viruses, Foundation President Basil O'Connor announced today.

Work at a center to be set up will be supervised by Dr. Kenneth F. Maxcy, epidemiology professor in the School of Hygiene and Public Health.

O'Connor said the grant was the largest single one made by the National Foundation, supported by contributions made yearly on President Roosevelt's birthday, since its organization in 1938.

Europe to Rise, Discard Bonds, Daniels Warns

Nazi-Conquered Peoples Compared to South of Reconstruction.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 12.—(AP)—Josephus Daniels in an address here today compared the plight of Nazi-conquered European countries with that of the south in reconstruction days and said, "the Europeans under bondage will surely come back."

The World War I secretary of the Navy asserted the memory of the denial of self-government and freedom during reconstruction had inspired the south to lead the nation in voluntary military enlistments, both before and after Pearl Harbor.

Daniels, editor and publisher of the Raleigh News and Observer, spoke at the dedication of the Confederate Memorial Forest near here.

Asking a reason for the wave of patriotism in the south, Daniels answered his question by saying:

"It is because the southern people, aided by noble patriots in the north, overcame military rule and regained control of their affairs, that they have no doubt the suffering European nations will throw off rule by force and again order their own way of life."

"The mistreatment suffered by the south, however, was nothing compared to the treatment now being given the Nazi-conquered people," Daniels said.

J. Sproule Lyons' Services Will Be Held Today

Rites for Noted Religious Leader To Be Conducted by Dr. Gardner.

Funeral services for J. Sproule Lyons, 81, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta and one of the south's outstanding religious leaders, who died Saturday, will be held at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the First Presbyterian church, with Dr. William V. Gardner, who succeeded him as pastor of the church, officiating.

Elders and deacons of the church will act as pallbearers.

The body will be taken to Lawrenceburg, Ky., for burial.

A native of Tazewell, Va., Dr. Lyons came to Atlanta in 1914 and served 22 years as pastor of the First Presbyterian church before retiring in 1936.

He was trustee of Agnes Scott College, Rabun Gap-Nacoochee school, Presbyterian College and Columbia Theological Seminary.

RUFUS HAS MORE TIME FOR THE GARDEN NOW

Tire and gasoline rationing have made Rufus more of a handy man and less of a chauffeur. He doesn't spend hours on end in a downtown parking lot while the lady of the house does her shopping. She's using the trolley and bus now instead of her auto. And Rufus is working instead of waiting.

Because of the necessity to conserve rubber and gasoline, many more Atlanta women are depending on the street car and bus for shopping trips these days. They're finding this way of getting to town comfortable and convenient if they follow the 10-to-4 rule.

Between 10 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, there are fewer people on the cars than during the rush hours. By boarding your trolley or bus after 10 and leaving town by 4, you have a better chance of getting a seat. You certainly will be more comfortable in a less crowded car. And you'll be giving the right-of-way in the rush hours to workers.

Georgia Dealers Back OPA Subsidy Plan on Gasoline

Emphasizing that increased gasoline transportation costs are results of the national war effort, the executive committee of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Dealers yesterday adopted unanimously a motion supporting the position of the Office of Price Administration that these costs should be spread nationally instead of being absorbed by the eastern seaboard states through a price increase.

Woman Power Seen as Great Secret Weapon

Leader Wants Share in Setting Nation's Policies.

DENVER, July 12.—(AP)—American woman power was described today as a great secret weapon which cannot be fully utilized in the war effort until women are admitted into higher policy-making and administrative posts.

Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, of Dallas, Texas, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., told federation board members that American woman power is "perhaps the newest and least used weapon in the whole arsenal of the United States," and suggested that something be done about it.

The board opened its 234 annual meeting today. "Today, when as everyone knows production is the key to victory, opportunities to serve are given to women usually with the greatest reluctance," Dr. Maffett charged. "The country is now fighting for the right to be free, but women must still fight for the right to fight to be free."

"As we take an inventory of the place of women seven months after war has been declared, we find them in practically every thing except the higher policy-making and administrative posts—be these in business, in labor, or in government."

"In both the American Federation of Labor and in the CIO, there are no women in any of the inner councils. Even the women's trade union auxiliaries of the AFL are headed by a man."

"Perhaps most striking of all is the absence of women in high policy posts in our own government."

Greatest Raid Maneuver Held By Canadians

Advanced Operations Training Continues for Weeks.

WITH A CANADIAN ATTACK FORCE AT A BRITISH PORT, July 12.—(AP)—The greatest raid and invasion maneuvers ever held in European waters have been carried out by a Canadian attack force, the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force as a prelude to what may be major military operations on the European coast.

For weeks a special force which included Canadian infantry and armored regiments went through advanced combined operations training. Masses of armored fighting vehicles were landed from the sea in support of waves of assaulting infantry.

Several times a huge armada of naval craft put to sea with the Canadian force aboard and full dress rehearsals of staggering dimensions were staged with raids on a section of the English coast. The exercises marked a long step forward in the varied training of the Canadians.

SIGNALS FOR SPEED.
The U. S. Army's chief signal officer, Major General Dawson Olmstead, has arrived in England to speed up British-American plans for signal supplies and equipment.

700,000 barrels moving daily in tank cars, as compared to 70,000 barrels daily on January 17, you can see how additional millions of loss would mount, and prohibit the traffic, unless a curative step was taken.

"That curative step was the price increase on June 29 of two and one-half cents a gallon on gasoline and two cents on fuel oils and kerosene."

"Even so, the Georgia and Florida advance is about 10 per cent under the advance in the other states. Moreover, as you dealers know, Georgia and Florida prices went up only half as much, or even less, on prices in the other states in the curtailment area, in the earlier increase of April 28. In fact, Georgia didn't go up at all until June 10."

"In the state of Georgia there has been much talk of pipe line facilities. It is only proper to say that the Plantation Line, starting at Baton Rouge, La., running through Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, with an extension into Tennessee, is a common carrier with a capacity of about 60,000 barrels daily, and is intended to service six states; the Southeastern Line, running from Port St. Joe, Fla., through Florida, Georgia and into Tennessee, has a capacity of about 32,000 barrels and is servicing three states. But, to get gasoline into this pipe line it is necessary that it be transported across the Gulf of Mexico, which has also been subject to submarine menace and regulations imposed by the United States Navy. The result was that during the week ending June 20 approximately 3,000,000 gallons of petroleum products were shipped into Georgia by tank cars from out of the curtailment area."

First Objective.
"The first objective, of course, was to keep essential industries in operation. It may be necessary to use these lines for fuel oil by fall or before the fall months as there is a serious shortage of heating oils in the area. And, while every effort has been made to induce a change-over to coal, and the filling of coal bins during the summer months, there still exists a feeling of anxiety as to heating difficulties during the coming winter."

"Efforts are being made to obtain a subsidy, payable either to the pool to be used only for extra transportation cost or payable direct to the railroads. The oil companies have gained nothing by the increase of price, but, as mentioned, up to June 30 sustained a pool deficit of $38,000,000 of transportation cost. The present pool is a voluntary one and to make it national would require special legislation. Washington believes that their best procedure is to fight for a subsidy."

Allies Capture 2,000 in Libya Counterattacks
Both spoke of heavy air raids on the British.
Marshal Rommel, who is reported to have appealed repeatedly to Hitler for more air support to counter the RAF and U. S. superiority, seemed to have received at least a modicum of reinforcements because the British reported increased enemy air activity over their advanced troops.

The Allied air force has been hammering the tired and stalled Africa Corps and its tenuous, tattered supply lines mercilessly for ten days or more, inflicting heavy casualties in men and material. Yesterday was no exception. In dog fights over the brown, rocky desert sands and over the sea between Tobruk and Matruh, the British said they shot down eight enemy planes, three of which were the great Junkers-52 troop carriers. Three other planes were destroyed over Malta, the painful Mediterranean thorn in the Axis' sea flank. The British lost three planes. Many Axis planes were damaged.

The toll of the giant Junkers-52 in two days thus rose to at least 15. These are capable of carrying 40 to 60 troops. The British said they believed the Junkers were carrying specialists to Rommel. Thus it was conceivable that 400 or more highly trained Nazi troops had been destroyed in these air actions alone.

Chances Rise for Driving Rommel to Libya

By EDWARD E. BOMAR.

Wide World War Analyst.

Chances appear to be mounting that the British may be able to chase General Rommel back to the Libyan border and remove the immediate threat to Egypt.

In three days, the defenders have seized the initiative, taken 2,000 prisoners, destroyed hundreds of enemy vehicles, including tanks, and forced back the invading Axis army several miles. The attacks are preliminary sparring, of course. Perilous uncertainties remain. What is most encouraging is the evidence of the last few days that the British have been able to bring in substantial reinforcements to restore the balance of power which was almost fatally upset by Rommel's drive last month, and that for once the Axis was caught unprepared to exploit a triumph.

Many of the uncertainties promise to be relieved this week either with canny General Auchin-

Ex-Senator Bayard Is Dead in Delaware

WILMINGTON, Del., July 12.—(AP)—Former U. S. Senator Thomas F. Bayard, 74, of Wilmington, died here today of cerebral apoplexy. He was stricken last night at the Wilmington club.

A son of Thomas F. Bayard, first ambassador to the Court of St. James's, Bayard served in the senate from 1922 to 1929.

leck rolling back the Axis Panzers toward the border, or by a sudden decisive blow by his resourceful foe.

The "news of grave importance" which Prime Minister Churchill 10 days ago was expecting momentarily was partly the outcome of the desert Battle of the Marne which halted Rommel at El Alamein. The rest can hardly be delayed much longer, with both armies in a position neither commander relishes.

Where the British armored reinforcements have come from—newly arrived convoys, unused reserves, or diversions from the Middle East and India—may not be known in detail for a long time to come, but they seem to be on the British side, if only briefly.

Presumably, Rommel has had to rely for reinforcements largely on what was already in North Africa since his success was unexpected and Nazi armored forces were mostly committed in Russia.

Since his impetuous drive came to a halt, his four battered, skeletonized armored divisions probably have been strengthened by scores of tanks. These, however, likely are almost entirely repaired vehicles, put back into action by the process of "cannibalization," or stripping one crippled tank of parts to restore another. Hundreds of damaged vehicles of all kinds were left in his hands in his 400-mile advance, but the supply is limited.

The Germans aboard the dozen Nazi troop-carrying planes reported Saturday to have been shot down or severely damaged by British flyers were probably crews for the repaired tanks.

Some Axis surface ships have been bombed in the Mediterranean, but signs are still lacking of large convoys bringing armored reinforcements.

Assuming the most optimistic turn of events, which would be an early smash by the British into Rommel's present 50-mile iron ring, his eventual retirement may be looked for all the way back to the strong Halfaya pass defense line at the Libyan border.

Matruh, some 100 miles west of the present battle line, was once a British strong point, but its military value was as a defense against a move from Libya rather than from the east. If Rommel tried to stabilize his defenses there, his line of communication would be exposed to harassment as now.

Four Camel Caravans... complete road shows for men in uniform

750 performances to 1,000,000 and more soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen in camps and stations from Plattsburg to Pensacola to Panama as this goes to press

JULY 31, 1941! That's when the Camel Caravans hit the road. And they've been at it ever since: four performances a day in some camps to audiences of 15,000 to 20,000.

Yes, it seems you can't find a military scene anywhere without Camels in the picture... cigarette or show. Or both. And both seem to have won top rating with the men in all the services. According to applause and letters of appreciation from morale officers, the shows are a "smash hit!" And according to sales records, the cigarette is a "smash hit," too. The top-ranking favorite in P.X.'s and Canteens.

STEADY NERVES...that's the order of the hour. Whether you man a gun or a machine... whether you sit a jouncing jeep or knit a sweater... you'll appreciate Camels more than ever these days. They have the mildness that counts!

Important to Steady Smokers:

THE SMOKE OF SLOW-BURNING
CAMELS
contains LESS NICOTINE

than that of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—less than any of them—according to independent scientific tests of the smoke itself!

ARMY CAMPS write:
"...Express to you thanks of this garrison for the splendid entertainment by the Camel Caravan... the production was excellent..." "Very happy experience to find a 'soldier' show that did not 'play down' to its audience..." "Our Army personnel is appreciative of high-class entertainment."

Thank you, Gentlemen, it was a pleasure and a privilege!

SURE, free cigarettes, as well as a free show, are part of the fun when one of those 4 big Camel Caravans rolls into camp. Camel's famous full, rich flavor, coolness, and extra mildness also "take a bow."

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 13, 1942.

Nation's Strength

That the strength of a nation's resources are intellectual and moral as well as physical, and that this country at war fights with its brains as well as its brawn, are to be seen here in Georgia in the full-powered contribution our colleges are making to the war effort.

Even before the hundreds of young naval fliers began pouring into Athens for their pre-flight training, Georgia colleges, through their intellectual and physical facilities, were hard at work in defense of the democratic decencies.

Of the 400 young men who graduated from Georgia Tech in June, for example, almost 300 are already at battle stations. The remainder now labor at jobs in the immediate war industries, developing explosives, fashioning airplanes, building for the greatness of America. With only a three-day vacation between terms, the Tech faculty and student body immediately reopened for the summertime, thus initiating a program which will graduate officers more than one year earlier than normal.

In the shops and laboratories of the school, day and night, for 18 hours each day, students and faculty study and train, explore the possibilities of radio, chemistry, physics, airplane design, foresee the day when the inventiveness of trained minds will turn the tide of a great battle somewhere on an unknown field.

Revolutionary at Tech is the presence of some 40 or 50 girls, first to invade this man's sanctum sanctorum, college graduates from all over the country gathered here into classes for war work. Where once their presence would have evoked the vociferous exuberance of college boys, today they work and study almost without notice from the busy students around them.

More than 1,000 night students, registered in special courses for war training, keep the campus alive after dark. Special courses introduced into the day school, enlarged classes in the Army and Navy courses, a regular physical training program enlarged to fit every R. O. T. C. member, all these add to the effectiveness of our brains in war.

Tech, like other colleges, is determined that democracy is a principle which the world shall not willingly let die. That Tech and other colleges of the University System deserve to be rescued from debased politics is obvious.

Second Front Soon

Americans reasonably may expect to awake soon to the news that a second front has been opened.

The news of it will not come until it has been started and some progress made. But it will come. And sooner than we expect. The war in Russia demands some second front action.

That it will be costly goes without saying. It will cost the lives of many of our men. Recent articles telling of the commando raids on the French coast indicate how strongly fortified is that coast.

The Germans, with their thoroughness, cannot have failed to fortify the coast against just such an attempt. That this country and England are making every effort to find a weak spot for the attack also goes without saying.

Such an effort requires months of planning. It requires an immense amount of shipping to carry a million men and supplies. It demands control of the air, not over one specific area, but over a wide span of territory. It requires control of the sea.

The Germans know it is coming. They have withdrawn troops from inland Belgium and brought them to the coast. They are trying to anticipate where the blow will strike.

It is an exciting game and one in which the stakes are the lives of our men and the outcome of the war.

Just that. The Russians have done most of the fighting and most of the dying.

The time has come when a second front must be attempted.

It is not something to be discussed glibly or easily. It is sure to be part tragedy, no matter how successful. It is sure to bring great sorrow to many homes, no matter how soon the bridgehead is established and the offensive begun.

It is something for this country to pray about.

It must, tragic though some of its chapters must be, be done if the war is to be won.

Planes for the CAP

Efforts of the Atlanta squadron of the Civil Air Patrol to obtain two planes for training work should meet a quick response from aviation-conscious Atlantans.

Work of the CAP is becoming ever more valuable and the existence of the squadron here assures continued interest in aviation growth among those who are not completely qualified for the armed services as well as providing valuable assistance to the services and the state. The planes are badly needed to permit fliers who have not put in sufficient air hours to qualify for their licenses. These pilots are needed to replace other CAP pilots who have gone into the Army and the Navy and to assure a pool through which the Civil Air Patrol can be kept at full strength for the roles assigned it by the Army, the Navy and the Office of Civilian Defense.

Arnall's Speech

Attorney General Ellis Arnall spoke to the state Saturday night.

He properly ignored the rather frantic rantings of his opponent's speech of the evening before and continued to point out to the people his positive platform. It proposes a high type of government in which the state can take pride. It proposed, in detail:

To take the state university and the schools of the state from under the direct control of the Governor and restore the educational institutions of the state to their proper standings.

To prevent new taxes and to carry out a program of honest economy, rigidly enforced. No trainload of fired employees will return loaded with more state employees than were sent away.

To strengthen the Department of Agriculture for the farmers of the state. To assist the small business men in the cities of Georgia who depend on the farmer.

To sustain department heads and not make them slaves of the Governor.

Abolishment of the pardon and parole racket and other reforms are in his platform.

The state is urged to listen to this campaign, to sift the rantings and the many "charges" out of the speeches, and to see how much grain is left when the chaff is removed.

Mr. Arnall has a platform which the people can follow with courage and with confidence.

Rubber Progress

A surveyor in Alaska reports coming upon a blue bear, but hasn't bottles to prove it.

Dudley Glass

Reports have it that when the President does make his announcement to the nation about the rubber situation it will be a great pat on the back for American research men and for industry.

It is said such progress with new synthetics has been made that necessary vehicles will be kept on the road. Their speeds will be slower but they will be kept.

There will be no tires for joy-riding or for pleasure or vacation trips.

But the national civilian economy, which is based on rubber-tired transportation, will be kept going.

Georgia Editors Say:

YES, IT MUST BE VERY TRUE.
(From The Times Journal, Eastman, Ga.)
Rumors have circulated the entire state within recent weeks that the great Talmadge machine is breaking up!

Evidently the report is true, because those who listened to Talmadge's Fourth of July speech at Moultrie could hardly fail to recognize the absence of the usual rip-roaring, boisterous and enthusiastic applause from his followers.

The response to the Governor's little personal remarks was not up to par, and the voices of those responding at his call were the same over and over... the same identical voices... the same yells repeatedly by the same people evidently placed near the microphone in an effort to fool those who were not there in person!

Yes! Talmadge's political machine is breaking up!
Heads of loyal supporters of the chief executive are shaking in the negative over the crowd at Moultrie, which they do not truthfully believe to be what was expected.

Yes! Talmadge's political machine is breaking up!
There is no doubt in the minds of the Governor and his friends as to what is really breaking up the Talmadge machine. They know, as do all others, that when the proverbial monkey wrench is thrown into the cogs, something is bound to break!

That monkey wrench is seen in the person of Ellis Arnall, Georgia's present popular and brilliant attorney general.

Arnall has no political machine; he doesn't have employees with fine cars and "X" gas cards; but he has the biggest and the happiest crowd!

Yes! The Talmadge political machine is breaking up!
It is even breaking in Dodge county. Worse than at any time in the Governor's entire political career. Dyed-in-the-wool Talmadge supporters and followers are becoming doubtful; are even admitting their fervor and interest in their Governor isn't what it used to be. As bad as some hate to admit it, they are fully aware of the fact that their Governor has "broken his own neck."

Probably the biggest blow to the Talmadge forces is Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linde's request to the voters of Georgia to defeat Talmadge because the Governor had betrayed the farmers of the state and is no longer their friend.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

DOOLITTLE'S TRIP WASHINGTON, July 12.—It is now possible to throw new light on two phases of the Doolittle raid on Tokyo which were somewhat puzzling to the public at the time.

One was why our bombing planes, although intercepted by Japanese patrols long before the squadron reached Tokyo, met so little resistance in the air that not a one of them was shot down over Japanese territory.

The other was why our bombers failed to blast the Japanese Imperial Palace.

General Doolittle himself has now made an explanation of the two puzzling points. Both of them have excited considerable discussion. As regards the Imperial Palace, a small controversy raged immediately after the raid on the question of whether our bombers did the right thing in allowing the residence of Emperor Hirohito to escape destruction.

Not until after the war perhaps will the full details of the harrowing raid be divulged, but it is no violation of the rigid censorship imposed to give General Doolittle's version of the two points. Here is how he has summed up the situation to close friends in Washington:

Failure of the Japs to offer more air resistance to the American bombers when they reached Tokyo is attributed by him to one of three things: Either the Japanese communications fell down completely, resulting in Tokyo not being forewarned by the patrol planes which sighted the Americans long before they reached their first objective; or, (2) the Japs didn't have enough equipment left at home bases to send up against the raiders; or (3) the Japs repeated the error we made at Pearl Harbor by ignoring the warnings as preposterous after they were received.

ISLAND ATTITUDE General Doolittle, now on temporary assignment to duty in the War Department here, hasn't any idea which of the three suggested explanations is correct. In support of the last one, however, he points out that practically no resistance was encountered in Japan, from the Emperor on down, had solemnly assured the people that an air raid of the kind was impossible. It would have been easy, therefore, for the military heads charged with air defense to have discounted a report from some lone plane patrol pilot that a squadron of enemy planes was en route.

After being sighted by the patrols General Doolittle fully expected the air over Tokyo to be filled with Zeros when he arrived. As it turned out, practically no resistance was encountered. The Americans had no difficulty shooting it out with the few fighters who happened to be in the air.

On the face of things, it seems more likely that his first explanation holds greater plausibility—failure of Japanese communications. The Japs are known to be far behind in their communications. They have nowhere near reached the perfection we have in transmitting military messages in emergencies. What we have accomplished in the various raids conducted against their outposts in the Pacific is conclusive enough evidence on this score, he says, to mention the way we handled affairs at Midway and in the Coral Sea.

On the score of the Imperial Palace, General Doolittle says that the decision not to bomb it was made entirely on his own responsibility. The War Department had given him complete freedom of action on the point. He could do about it as he pleased.

THOUGHT OF PRISONERS After giving the subject considerable thought he was finally persuaded to leave the palace unmolested for three reasons:

First, contrary to popular belief, there still remains a sizeable element in Japan which is not in sympathy with the war party's program. Bombing of the imperial residence, he was afraid, would solidify this group—more particularly since the Emperor is looked upon by the people as a semi-divinity.

Second, he was restrained by the concern he had for the thousands of American prisoners Japan holds. Bombing of the palace might have provoked the bloodthirsty Japs to take severe reprisals against the American prisoners.

And, third, General Doolittle was influenced by the reaction which set in in England after the Germans deliberately bombed Buckingham Palace. Before that the British people were beginning to weaken under the continuous air attacks, he says. But when Buckingham was bombed the British were given new determination by the realization that the King and Queen were taking the same punishment. It gave them new spirit, a new will to resist to the end.

The same forces might have been set in play in Japan. Besides, he believes, the bombing of the capital city alone was sufficient to destroy the people's faith in the Emperor and governing heads, all of whom had so solemnly assured them that a thing of the kind was impossible.

Nevertheless, General Doolittle concedes that it is still a moot question. Many of our senators argued at the time that we made a serious mistake in not blasting the imperial palace to bits. Nothing, they asserted, would have gone further in destroying Japanese morale. What happens the next time may be an entirely different story. The leader of the next expedition to Tokyo may take a different slant, the general agrees.

Pooling Autos;
How's It Working
Out Your Way?

One reads a lot in the papers about this automobile pooling but I can't help wondering how well it is working out, especially with these staggered hours when no two neighbors go to work at the same time.

It has worked pretty well with college students for years. The boys with a car arrange to pick up a few fellow students every morning and transport them to the campus—at a dime a ride or a split on gasoline.

Difficulty of "pooling," I should think, would not be so great going to town as returning home. Who ever knows what time he will be ready to start home? But folks are rarely in a hurry to get home, anyway, especially if there's a lawnmower lurking right there by the front steps.

Sharing a car isn't so important in my neighborhood, though I have been mighty thankful for a ride on many an occasion. Most of my set resides within walking distance of the trackless trolley. But the number of private cars on Peachtree road doesn't seem to have been reduced—and they travel just as fast as in the good old days. With one occupant.

More Gas Now

This latter not be so great going to town as returning home. Who ever knows what time he will be ready to start home? But folks are rarely in a hurry to get home, anyway, especially if there's a lawnmower lurking right there by the front steps.

Gone for Summer

My Sunday evenings have been spoiled until the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock, I am afraid.

I have never been what you'd call a real radio fan. I can find it—and its summer barn theater, Fernbank is one of the many spots around Atlanta I've never seen. Just never did get around to it—like the old lady who lived in hearing distance of Niagara's roar and died at 92, voting regret that she'd never seen the falls.

According to the press the theater is presenting "The Drunkard" Tuesday and Friday nights. Well, it's almost an actor-proof melodrama. I think it's been running in Los Angeles or thereabouts for four or five years. And it was about the only good show the Federal theater group put on at the Atlanta theater during that noble and costly experiment. I'll never forget Jimmy Reese as the cold-blooded old miser who held the mortgage.

Now they're all taking a vacation and all I can do is read a good—or bad—book. I have an idea I'd like to hear Bob Hope, but he doesn't seem to be working either. Do you suppose I'd like Amos and Andy? I haven't heard them in years.

My dictionary not being easy of access, I am thinking about a word which is insidiously creeping into the military language—inducted.

I was brought up, as a court house reporter, on "indicted," and as you all know that rhymes with "benighted." But that "ind" makes a difference. I take it for granted the word is pronounced "inducted," because "inducted" would sound kind of awkward.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Commission NEW YORK, July 12.—Of course a mistake and inequalities are bound to occur in the rush of an inexperienced people to go to war, but the issuance of commissions in the Army and Navy, in rank as high as major and lieutenant commander, for men with no qualifications whatever, is being overdone. The rule or policy by which rank is conferred appears to be no more distinct than the thin meandering line of a trickle through a meadow. One good and conscientious man with a profession or mechanical specialty and past military experience shuts up his home and his wife goes to live with relatives while he disappears into the Army with the rank of first lieutenant and with every prospect of service overseas, while another man of the same age blossoms out in a swell uniform with the leaves of a major on his shoulders to serve as an adviser of some kind in an office in New York or Washington.

An adviser could give just as good advice in the uniform of a buck private or in civilian clothes and the same may be said of press agents, of whom there is a growing abundance holding commissioned rank. A case is mentioned of a young man, in all ways eligible for duty, but in no way qualified for a commission, who was made a lieutenant, senior grade, in the Navy just because he asked for a commission and for no other reason and then was sent to a station to be trained for the duties of a deck officer.

College System At the same time thousands of young men are enlisted as second-class seamen and permitted to train in certain colleges and later in training stations for the rank of ensign, but with the understanding that if they do not make the grade they will go to sea as enlisted sailors. That seems the sensible way, but such young men and thousands of other enlisted sailors will marvel at the ingenuity, the luck and the drag of another who steps out of mufti into the uniform of a commissioned officer with two promotions and takes his training afterward.

The war is now reaching into every family circle and even married men whose wives are jobholders are saying goodbye to become enlisted soldiers and sailors. Most of them seem to be going along without complaint and all of them will go into the Army and their relatives know that they may be sent to Africa, Britain, Australia, China or wherever else the enemy may be met, not to return for years, if ever. Such being the grim case, fairness and decency should dictate that trashy opportunists should not be permitted to hop into uniforms and masquerade as officers.

The most notorious and disgraceful single instance of this abuse will be recognized throughout the Navy and by soldiers and civilians without the mention of a name or any description save the one word, blackguard. But many other men, equally undeserving in ranks which good soldiers and sailors achieve only after thorough experience and faithful service.

There was a good article in one of the service publications, probably the Infantry Journal, some time ago which suggested a partial remedy, at least. The writer proposed that the American armed service adopt a method of the Nazis by which the combat soldier and sailor are distinguished from the non-combatants by markings on their uniforms. That is good as far as it goes.

Not only the American forces, particularly the Army, now have commissioned officers in considerable numbers who are specialists and thoroughly deserving of their rank, who undoubtedly will go into action or anyway go under fire along with the combatants and share their risks almost equally. So, to set such men apart from the combatants would be to suggest that they are of no more merit than many others who never will see action of any kind because they have absolutely no value in any specialty and would get in the way. Why commissions are tossed around to such worthless officers no authority has undertaken to explain. The term "specialist" is vague.

It covers the meritorious case of one Gene Tunney, who has done good work and who held equivalent rank in the Marine Corps Reserve anyway, but it also covers the safe and easy jobs of men who haven't the respect of genuine officers and who have none from enlisted men.

It is impossible and unjust to generalize. The forces are crawling with commissioned press agents who deserve no rank whatever and whose very presence in officers' uniforms is an affront to the enlisted men and to other officers who earned their rank. But at the same time there are some officers of public relations who have served faithfully and earned their promotions. It is the cheap, or fake, commission which should be abolished and revoked. If a specialist has no specialty of value, the services he doesn't deserve commissioned rank and certainly never ballyhoo is no such specialty. The services need no ballyhoo with the American people.

lemma as that in which a quarterback finds himself when, on the two-yard line and fourth down. It may be a sore dilemma as when a child about to be punished is given the choice of the methods to be employed. Mr. Chamberlain was in a dilemma when he was faced with war or national humiliation. Many people imagine they are in a dilemma when they lack only the courage to make a decision.

"Between the horns of a dilemma" means that a person must agree to accept one of two equally unpleasant propositions.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

DIVIDE AND CONQUER Facts always interest me. So do chiefly because he made clearer than any other of that great war lords of history how effectively propaganda may be made to work for the armed forces.

Hitler wrote for public consumption that one of the best attacks was to tell a lie, the greater the lie the better, against your enemy. If the lie is repeated enough there will be some who believe it.

He said again that one of the best ways to conquer a nation was to divide it. He did that, before his army came, in most of the countries now prostrate and enslaved.

His agents are busy in this country. Some of them are unwitting dupes who follow the enemy pattern without realizing it. One of the current enemy agent jobs is to keep going any possible anti-Semitic propaganda. They have as their aim to create suspicion and hatred in this country.

It seems to me that it is patriotic duty to discuss it and nail the lie, rather than to let it go unchecked. There is a whispering campaign to the effect that Jews are seeking to evade military service. This despite the fact that the percentage of Jews in the armed forces in this war is greater than the percentage of their population in this country. This was true in the first war. The effect of the propaganda has been, in some communities, to remember one case of attempted evasion and to forget all those who went willingly.

A LOOK AT THE RECORD I have sought, and obtained, some official records which ought to be of interest to fair-minded persons willing to know the truth and to be on guard against the agents of hate and disunion. The American Bar Association Journal for February reports that the first known fatality among the membership of the American Bar Association was Ensign Robert L. Leopold, of Louisville, Ky.

The first known casualty from the membership of the Chicago Bar Association was Captain Irving Macdonald, who was severely wounded in action while serving with MacArthur on Bataan peninsula. He since has been promoted because of his bravery and ability.

The first Japanese battleship sunk in the war was that one in which Captain Colin Kelly piloted his ship through heavy fire within bombing range. The bombardier in that plane, who aimed the bombs and released them, was a Jew, Corporal Meyer Levin.

The first fatality from Minneapolis was Ensign Ira Weil Jeffery, who received a posthumous reward for valor.

Among the first fatalities from Chicago was Sherman Levine, an 18-year-old boy who died in action at Pearl Harbor.

Perhaps the youngest boy in action at Pearl Harbor was Morris Samuelson, of New Orleans, who was a gunner on that morning and fired more than 250 rounds at the Japanese. He since has been mustered out because it was discovered he falsified his age when enlisted. He will re-enlist when he is 18. He now is 17.

The first fatality from Delaware was Sergeant Harry Fineman, of Wilmington.

The first applicant for membership in the American Gold Star Mothers of this war was Mrs. Gertrude Kram, of New York, whose 18-year-old son, a gunner with a Navy crew aboard a tanker, was killed in the torpedoing of his ship. She herself was the daughter of a Gold Star mother.

The first American soldier brought home for burial on American soil was Sergeant Herbert Keelson, of the United States Marines, who was killed aboard a cruiser during the attack on the Gilbert and Marshall Islands some months ago.

One of the youngest war mothers in America is Mrs. Michael Newman, of Oregon, whose 17-year-old son enlisted, with her permission, in the Marines.

Lieutenant Commander Solomon Isquith recently was awarded the Navy Cross for "extraordinary courage and disregard for his own safety" while directing the abandonment of the U. S. S. Utah when it capsized during the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Private Leonard York, of Columbus, recently was honored on the "They Live Forever" program. He received the Order of the Purple Heart for bravery while machinegunning Japanese during the December 7 attack.

Three young Jews were aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington, Lieutenant Commander Max Silverstein was in command of the destroyer Sims when it was sunk in the Coral Sea engagement—was killed in the fight.

A number of Jewish privates and non-commissioned officers were captured at Wake Island and at Guam.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER The list could go on. These are but a few outstanding facts of the war we are in today.

The enemy wants you to dislike some other American group. It is spending money and time in an effort to make you do that. The enemy wants you to fall into the human error of condemning a whole group by the action of an individual or by the acts of a few individuals.

In time of war emotions are close to the surface.

The best way is to doubt and deny all charges, and some of them are subtle, against a people or an individual until the real facts are known.

The enemy wants you to fall into the error of repeating whispers against other peoples in America.

Don't let Hitler get away with one of his chief weapons.

Don't be repeating one of his lies.

They Don't Think the Fire Serious If They Won't Stop Their Bridge Game

By ROBERT QUILLEN

When the government measures production by the number of billions spent, it gives us a report that is misleading, for vast sums expended represent nothing more than commissions, unholly profits and plain graft.

But we can measure the failure of our war effort by the hardships we are not enduring.

Two things we know: That we are taking a beating, and that we are making only a half-way effort to win. These things are not debatable, for they are self-evident.

Where is the proof that we are not doing our best? That, also, is self-evident.

We know that our utmost effort will be required to win—effort to the uttermost limit of the whole nation's ability. That being true, compare our present effort with what we might do, with what the British are doing—and you have the degree of our failure.

Our leaders, fearful of public opinion, act with tender consideration lest they offend us in the process of saving us.

In England, the income tax falls heavily on the poor man who makes only $450 a year, and increases step by step until it leaves the rich man only $2.50 out of each $100 of income. Are we sacrificing in that proportion?

No private citizen in England, rich or poor, is allowed any gasoline at all. Yet we resent rationing and continue to waste the rubber that is necessary to victory.

Over 80 per cent of England's boys and girls above the age of 14 are doing war work, in factories or on farms, and our crops rot for want of pickers.

All workers in England, men and women, are sent where they can be most useful, regardless of their desires; while our people work where they wish, or not at all, and employers "pirate" one another's skilled workmen by offering higher wages.

English women whose hands were soft are working 55 hours a week, doing men's work to release men for the fighting forces.

We aren't waging total war. We are making it easy on ourselves. The measure of our hardship is the measure of our effort.

Congressman Flays Corporation Tax Plan as 'Murder'

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—A minority of the House Ways and Means Committee asserted today that proposed corporation taxes in the new $6,250,000,000 revenue bill were too severe, one calling them "a grievous burden for all and a back-breaking burden for many."

Representative Robertson, Democrat, Virginia, made that appraisal and was supported in this view by Representatives Disney, Democrat, Oklahoma, and Duncan, Democrat, Missouri.

Before approving the bill finally yesterday, a majority of the committee voted to increase from 31 to 45 per cent the combined normal and surtaxes on corporation income.

Robertson said he had supported a 40 per cent rate and a post-war refund of part of excess profits taxes because "if we make it so our corporations can't satisfactorily function in the postwar era, the alternative is government ownership and government operation."

Called Murder. Disney said "the 45 per cent rate is murder." He and Duncan contended, too, that a last-minute vote to reduce the excess profits tax rate from 94 to 87 1-2 per cent left tax-free too great a proportion of the swollen profits of many corporations.

The 94 per cent rate, once tentatively approved but then discarded, carried a provision for postwar return of 14 per cent to the taxpayers. This provision was dropped when the 87 1-2 per cent rate was adopted.

As drafting clerks worked over the weekend to get the bill ready for floor consideration by Thursday, members predicted that there would be several formal minority reports in addition to the lengthy description of the legislation being prepared for the majority. One member, who asked to remain anonymous, indicated he would oppose omission of mandatory joint income tax returns by husbands and wives.

Leaders planned to ask that the legislation be considered under a "closed rule"—a procedure barring any amendments except those recommended by the committee.

A fight was in prospect on the question of adopting such a rule which some members called a "gag." Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, for one, said he would oppose it.

Million Dollar Limit. He desired, he said, to offer amendments limiting inheritances to a maximum of $1,000,000, at least until this war is won and paid for, and raising income rates to the point where no one would have more than $25,000 income after payment of taxes.

Duncan, who disclosed that he had voted against the bill in committee, said he thought rates on individual incomes up to between $4,000 and $5,000 were too high, although that level "the rates are not too high and that includes myself." Congressmen receive $10,000 annually.

The bill lowers exemptions of single persons from $750 to $600 and of heads of families from $1,500 to $1,200. (The reductions do not apply to persons in the armed forces.) It increases the normal tax rate from 4 to 6 per cent and the graduated surtax from 5 per cent on the first $2,000 of net income to 13 per cent.

Movie Will Be Made

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The all-soldier show "This Is the Army," which opened on Broadway July 4, is to be made into a motion picture with all profits going to the Army Emergency Relief.

The announcement was made today by Major General Irving J. Phillipson, executive director of the relief agency.

Irving Berlin, the producer, and motion picture personalities now in the armed services are to appear in the screen version.

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communications must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Briefly makes argument effective and impels action.

CLAIMS NOT ALL STATEMENTS PRINTED.

The following letter has been received by Governor Talmadge from Thomas J. Shackelford, of Athens, the Talmadge supporter of Clarke county who was ignored when a patronage job was handed to an old Talmadge enemy. The Constitution prints the letter at the request of Governor Talmadge: July 10, 1942.

Governor Eugene Talmadge, State Capitol, Atlanta, Ga. Dear Governor:

Mr. Ball of the Atlanta Constitution called me up last night and talked to me at length. I gave him some facts and stated why I was supporting you, and said, "I am too big a man to change my allegiance for Governor Talmadge because he failed to appoint me to some office, and I shall continue to support him."

Ball seemed to be unfair to you everywhere. He did not print anything that I said. Some of your friends are printing my communication to the Banner Herald.

After thinking about it I decided to delete the word, "reptilian." That describes Cockey, but it might be a libelous word. You might strike that word from the letter which I wrote to you, and also from the communication which I sent you.

I am writing you hurriedly. Sincerely yours, THOMAS J. SHACKELFORD.

P. S. I said to Ball: "I supported Senator George because I thought there was a national crisis at hand, and I am now supporting Governor Eugene Talmadge for the reason that I believe there is a crisis in state affairs, and we need a man like Eugene Talmadge for Governor."

I did not say that I admired Walter George more than I did Eugene Talmadge. T. J. S. (Editor's Note: The Constitution story was written from notes made during a telephone conversation and the pertinent statements of a 45-minute conversation were published.)

SAYS "NIP NAZI WAR" IS BEST NAME.

Editor, Constitution: On the editorial page of today's Constitution you carried a short article by someone suggesting the name, "World War No. 2, Chapter No. 2, for the present war."

So far, of all names that have been suggested, I agree with you, that this one is the best.

I am a veteran of the World War and I believe I speak for thousands of other veterans when I say that we feel a selfish interest in that war, we feel like it was our war and just want it to be left that way, yet this present war is but a continuation of our war, we all admit this, but as I understand it, the President wanted a short, simple name for this one, and, "World War No. 1, Chapter 2" is no shorter than other names that have been submitted.

The attack on Pearl Harbor started the war with the Japanese and Nazi, so since our President asked for a short name, and one that would not conflict with our war, why not let this war go on the pages of history as the Nip-Nazi War?

ONE LYNCHING ONLY IN 1942.

Editor, Constitution: I send you the following statement concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the information compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that there was one lynching recorded in the first six months of 1942.

The person lynched was a Negro. The offense charged was: Suspected of criminal assault. The

Moscow News Calls for Early Second Front

'Hitler's Back Is His Weakest Spot,' Editorial Says.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, July 12. (P)—The Moscow News called today for the immediate establishment of a second front against Germany, declaring "Hitler's back is his weakest spot—he should be struck there with all the might at our disposal."

The editorial expressed bewilderment that a second front was not already visible, since the Anglo-Russian treaty is 45 days old.

"Hitler's calculations are built upon deciding the issue before large-scale operations on a second front can begin," the Moscow News said. It declared that all prerequisites for victory by the Allies have been created, but prerequisites are not victory.

In an interview, Major General Mikhail Gromov, who flew across the North Pole from Moscow to California five years ago, expressed pleasure at United States plans to join the RAF in bombing Germany.

"We in the east have been doing everything possible to destroy Goering's air force," he said. "We will be happy to learn of the start of major offensive operations in the air that our American and British friends are to conduct."

General Gromov advised American pilots that "the only way to attack the Germans at this juncture is with large numbers of bombers and fighters alike."

Rockefeller Plaza Closed for Day

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—The annual closing of Rockefeller Plaza which bisects normally bustling Rockefeller Center provided its annual amazement for sightseers today.

Not a single pedestrian nor vehicle moved along the three-block-long roadway—which in fact is a private thoroughfare—from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Under terms of the lease from Columbia University by which it acquired the land on which the Center is built, the Rockefeller management once each year must close the plaza to traffic, otherwise the street would eventually become a public thoroughfare and revert to the city.

TREMORS IN ECUADOR. GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, July 12. (P)—Several strong earthquake shocks were felt here early today, but no casualties or serious damage was reported.

What Hours Should You Work? Expert Has It All Figured Out

CHICAGO, July 12.—(P)—A new formula for beginning and ending the three eight-hour shifts in 24-hour industries, to increase efficiency and make allowance for the personal comfort of workers, has been worked out by Dr. Nathaniel Kleitman, professor of physiology at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Kleitman, an authority on problems relating to sleep, reported today on research carried out for a proposed United States Department of Labor bulletin.

Current conventional shifts in around-the-clock operations, he said, should be revised to provide a sleeping period for each crew as close as possible to the customary cycle, with shifts running from noon to 8 p. m., 8 p. m. to 4 a. m., and 4 a. m. to noon.

The "sunset shift" was especially recommended for young, unattached persons desiring night recreation. Working noon to 8 p. m., they would be free until 1 or 2 a. m., when they could sleep until 9 or 10 o'clock.

Dr. Kleitman described the 8 p. m.-4 a. m. shift as suitable for older persons with no children at home to disturb daytime sleep, put down for 5 a. m.-1 p. m., with afternoons and early evenings free.

In the "dawn shift," 4 a. m.-noon, the afternoons would be available for recreation, followed by sleep, 7 p. m. to 3 a. m.

The schedules eliminate as a principal rest period the afternoon hours when, Dr. Kleitman said, it is hardest to sleep.

A prime recommendation was for discontinuance of the practice current in many war plants of rotating night and day shifts every other week.

Adjustments to a new routine of sleep, work, meals and leisure, he noted, involve gradual acquisition of a daily body temperature curve with highest efficiency and least sleepiness during activity hours, and the opposite during sleep hours. The report said frequent rotation decreased production and tended to invite accidents.

Gold Shield Launderers Give Your Summer Clothes a 'Pick-Up'

Clean Raiment Is Good for the Mind and Body

Gold Shield Group Employees Enjoy Patriotic Outing.

Just as recreation gives the mind and body a lift, during the hot summer weather, so does a trip to the laundry give your summer clothes a pickup. According to S. R. Greenblatt, president, the Gold Shield group of launderers and cleaners, including the American, Capital City, Decatur, Excelsior, Guthman, May's, Piedmont, Trio and Troy, can be your greatest aid in keeping well groomed during the hot summer months yet to come.

Clean raiment is good for the mind and body. In the summer clothes soil much more quickly and between the heat, humidity and the natural body reactions this soil is often more than just dirt. So there's even more than a psychological basis for the "lift" that comes from Gold Shielded laundry and dry cleaning.

Gold Shield cleaners keep informed on changes and developments in summer fabric. Only expert spotters are used in removing spots and stains, and all garments are checked closely before delivery. Therefore, summer clothes returned from your Gold Shield cleaner will be clean, fresh-looking and the colors sparkling and clear.

Mr. Greenblatt further stressed the fact that this summer, when the family is spending vacations at home, housewives will want that satisfactory feeling that everything in their home is colorful, clean, free from stains, etc. In modern homes, curtains, draperies, slip covers, rugs, etc., represent a substantial investment. They deserve exquisite care. Gold Shield cleaners maintain special departments to see that they receive this if there are any blankets, quilts, winter clothing around the house, it should be stored immediately. Gold Shield maintains the largest facilities for protective storage in the whole southeast, and the conservation of winter clothing is of utmost importance throughout the duration.

HIGHLIGHT of the day at the Gold Shield launderers and cleaners outing was the selection of Miss Gold Shield. Young ladies competing for the honor sold War Savings Stamps, the one making the most sales winning the honor. S. R. Greenblatt is congratulating Jewel Guthrie, the winner, as Agnes Aiken and Betty Baker, runners-up, look on. Participants in this competition sold $406.60 in stamps during the day.

ANOTHER FEATURE was the presentation by Russell Baker, vice president of the group, of 96 safe driving awards to salesmen of the organization. These awards ranged from one to four years driving without an accident. Tom Pate is seen receiving a four-year award.

Grass Company Maintains Fine Repair Shops

Superweld Method of Welding Proves a Needed Service.

With a combined force of expert mechanics and a shop equipped for any type of electrical or acetylene welding and repair work that might be needed, and also the supplying of contractors' equipment and supplies, the Superweld Company, of Atlanta, and the J. W. Grass Equipment Company are keeping their forces of expert workmen on the jump these days.

Located at 504 Whitehall street, S. W., the superweld method of guaranteed motor block and head welding is proving a great help to those who need repair work on cracks in motor blocks, cylinder heads and other metal castings.

While at the same location one finds the Grass Equipment Company, where all manner of machinery repairs, done by a competent force of mechanics and welders, with day or night service, is assured. The Grass Equipment Company not only maintains a large and experienced force of mechanics for welding and repair of construction equipment, but handle air compressors, concrete mixers, power shovels, rock crushers, tractor equipment and the like.

In the superweld method of welding the company saves the customer time and money, as the job can be done without stripping the motor in case of car or truck it is not necessary to remove the motor or even the piston.

Valve chamber jobs are also done, where break is back of valve springs, in most cases, without removing the motor. In case of freeze cracks, where ordinary weld would show, this method leaves a smooth job and there is no indication of ever having been a break. This saves used car dealers many dollars.

Crumley Force Knows the Job Of Distributing

Well-Trained Men Experts in House-to-House Visits.

With a well organized force of full-grown men, who know the city well, the Crumley Distributing Service, with A. S. Crumley as manager, are serving a large clientele from time to time in its work of house-to-house distributing. The concern, which has been in the distributing business for 23 years, is located at 75 Hunter street, S. W., in large and roomy quarters.

The business of the agency is to distribute circulars, cards, folders, samples or anything desired to be carefully and systematically placed in the home. A large crew of competent men—men with experience in distribution work—is constantly employed. Frequently, however, as many as 75 men are engaged on some particular type of distribution.

Mr. Crumley has had the city divided up into districts and his office knows just how many pieces of literature or samples is needed to cover any given district, and as to just how long it will take to do the job.

Many nationally known companies use the Crumley service to get their samples and other materials to thousands of Atlanta homes.

"We distribute circulars, cards, folders, samples or anything of this sort, where the merchant or client desires his product—whether sample goods or printed matter—to actually reach the hands of those in the home," says Mr. Crumley.

400 Georgians Give Support to Bond Breakfast

Conner Hopes Total Will Reach 2 Million Dollars.

More than 400 war-minded Georgia citizens already have subscribed to enough bonds to make the big breakfast on July 17 a million and a half dollar affair, John L. Conner, chairman of the war bond breakfast campaign, said yesterday.

Two more persons have pledged $50,000 worth, he said, running the number of $50,000 purchases to six. Two persons have also pledged to buy $100,000 worth of bonds each.

Conner emphasized the breakfast was not for Atlanta alone, but for all Georgia, and that he wanted the co-operation of the rest of the state to run the total to $2,000,000 or more.

He said Birmingham raised approximately $2,000,000 and he wanted Georgia to equal and surpass this mark.

smashed the headquarters of the ninth Nazi tank division.

The Russians said more than 500 Nazis died in yesterday's fighting around Voronezh; at least 900 in Soviet delaying actions in the retreat from Kantemirovka, and 700 more fell as the Russians pulled out of Lisichansk.

(A Vichy radio broadcast head in London said Nazi troops already had occupied Boguchar, and also had captured Voroshilovgrad, 30 miles southeast of Lisichansk in a drive in the direction of Stalingrad.)

Red Star, the army newspaper, told of the bitter resistance of the Russians at Voronezh, on the Voronezh river 10 miles east of the Don, but added the warning that "in some places the situation is critical."

The three spearheads are pointed at the northern approaches to the Caucasus.

Rostov Reported Bombed. (The Germans indicated they already were beginning to strike at the oil-rich Caucasus, reporting bomb raids on Rostov, the southern gateway to the Caucasus, and on several ports on the Caucasian coast.)

The ferocity of the German onslaught was told in Russian reports of heavy casualties inflicted on the invading soldiers and of mounting losses of Nazi materiel in some of the heaviest fighting of war.

"Disregarding huge losses, the enemy is throwing in more and more reserves . . . our tanks are meeting enemy assaults with daring counterattacks," the Russian communique said.

Soviet dispatches said almost 300 German tanks had been destroyed in two days' fighting in various sectors.

A correspondent of Pravda, Communist party newspaper, said one German tank unit which took part in the crossing of the Don West of Voronezh lost at least one-third of its machines.

The midday communique declared that in one sector of the Voronezh battle Soviet tanks unit smashed 11 German tanks while in another sector a tank unit destroyed 18 German antitank guns, four medium tanks and six mortars.

Russian planes used as antitank weapons destroyed eight machines in one concentration.

Tass dispatches said in one engagement alone at an unidentified point one Russian unit destroyed and burned out 100 tanks while other tank units destroyed 171 tanks.

heavy role in the defense of Voronezh, reports said.

Red Star declared that one air force unit alone destroyed 65 planes in three days.

The Russians also reported the destruction of 25 bombers on several airdromes in the Voronezh area used by the German air force.

The Pravda correspondent said it was hard to estimate German losses in the crossing of the Don and in fighting on the eastern bank, but that they were very great.

In accelerated fighting on the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow, the Moscow radio told of Soviet troops breaking into the outskirts of a populated place, but did not name it.

U. S. Troops Given Canadian Permit

OTTAWA, July 12.—(AP)—An order-in-council providing for the stationing of units of the United States' armed forces in Canada was published today in the Canada Gazette.

The order, dated June 26, says that "with the consent of the Canadian government, the government of the United States of America has stationed and will station units of its armed forces in Canada and it is necessary, as an interim measure, to make immediate provision therefor."

As a result, the provisions of the foreign forces order, 1941, were made applicable to forces of the United States.

The order, stationing of United States Army Engineers in the northwest in connection with construction of the highway to Alaska brought the matter to a head but under the order stationing of American units anywhere in the Dominion is permissible.

Surprise Jap Assault Reported in North China

NEW YORK, July 12.—(P)—The Berlin radio said tonight in a Tokyo dispatch that Japanese and Manchukuo formations have started a surprise offensive against Chinese Communist troops in the mountains of southeastern Chahar province in north China. The operation began Saturday through difficult country, it was said, and the Japanese were reported today to have reached a point about 10 miles north of Yenking, or some 45 miles northwest of Peiping.

DUCHESSE IMPROVING.

NEW YORK, July 12.—(P)—The dowager Grand Duchess Marie-Anne of Luxembourg, who will be 81 tomorrow, was reported improving rapidly today at Doctor's hospital, where she underwent an operation for an acute abdominal ailment June 29. Her condition no longer is considered serious.

Story of 14 Days Adrift in North Sea Told by American

(Editor's Note: Holbrooke "Hoke" Mahn, of Denver, Colo., a 23-year-old American in the Royal Canadian Air Force, spent 14 days in a small boat in the North sea after his bomber crashed off the Dutch coast in June. Mahn, a Harvard graduate, is "still a sick boy" but is rapidly recuperating from the experience which he describes in the following story.)

By PILOT OFFICER HOLBROOKE MAHN.

On June 4 at 1:15 a. m. I took off from my airdrome in a Hampden bomber with my crew on a roving mission over the Frisian Islands off the Dutch coast.

While flying 200 to 300 feet up, the port engine of my "kite" suddenly failed and we immediately went into a turn which put us down into the sea even before we could jettison our bombs.

Although the plane sank almost immediately I managed to escape through my hood. One gunner and the navigator also came to the surface, but the other gunner never was seen again. The navigator suffered a bloody nose, tooth injuries and shock, but the gunner and I were uninjured.

Most Gear Lost

Our tiny dinghy had been released successfully and we climbed into it to await daylight. There were some provisions in the boat, but most of our iron rations, pigeons and other gear had gone down with the plane. At daylight we bailed out our boat and tried to dry our clothing. The food was found to be oil-soaked, but the two-quart containers of water were intact.

We all felt fairly comfortable that first day, and were not worried about our rescue chances. We decided to ration the water, limiting each man to one small drink every night.

We tried out some flares but they didn't work. The second and third days were pretty much the same as the first, but the fourth day brought the first trouble.

Boat Near Capsizing.

A high wind sprang up. Heavy swells endangered our small craft and soaked us thoroughly. We bailed feverishly. Sleep was well-nigh impossible because the boat always was near capsizing.

For six days more we bailed constantly. Loss of sleep and the exhaustion of our water supply brought fits of depression.

On the eighth day a German Junker circled over us about 45 minutes, then fled before a British Beaufighter. We waved but neither plane returned.

Then, shortly after sundown the navigator who had been delirious the previous day, died quietly. The gunner and I took off his battle-dress jacket and bade him farewell.

Late the next day four Hudson bombers came over us on a parallel course, turned around and came back again. But another heartbreak. The airmen never sighted out tiny craft.

On the following day, the 10th, the gunner began drinking seawater. I took the can he was using and threw it into the sea, and just about that time it began to rain. Ripping some canvas off the dinghy I caught several tablespoons of the water. The gunner wouldn't touch it, so I drank it all.

Last Companion Died.

A short time later the gunner became delirious and began suffering from the effects of the seawater. He died two hours later and because of my weakened condition I had trouble in getting his body out of the boat.

My own memory began failing the following day, but it was the 13th day when I had my first food since the crash. Lying on the floor of the boat I saw a seagull alight on the edge of the craft. I grabbed it, cut off its head, sucked the blood from its neck, and ate most of the bird raw.

On the 14th day I was rescued. It was not yet light when I heard a ship's motor throbbing nearby and I managed to cry out "ship ahoy." The crew heard me and threw me a line.

Aboard that ship I was given a lot of rum, wrapped in warm blankets and fed soup, gooseberry, raspberry and lime juices and water—about a quart of water. When we reached port an ambulance was waiting, and in a hospital I was put to bed for the first real sleep in two weeks.

RAF Daylight Attack Directed at Danzig Base

Nazi air force to reach their target.

Part of the attacking force apparently slipped in toward Danzig from the north, as an official Swedish announcement in Stockholm said 10 British bombers had crossed the west coast of Sweden Saturday evening.

It seldom gets dark before midnight along the Baltic at this season, and the bombers had ample light to choose their targets and press home their attack.

In a further extension of the blazing RAF offensive, a steady stream of RAF planes swept out across the channel today to strike at targets in northern France.

Spitfires flying in layers at varying heights headed for Boulogne and Cap Gris Nez in the liveliest air traffic over the channel in weeks. A lone German plane approached the southeast coast, but was driven off.

"New Era" Opened.

The Danzig raid capped the RAF's spring and summer bombing drive against Hitler's U-boat prowlers, which are dealing punishing blows at American, British and Russian shipping.

It opened a new era in bombing tactics, leaving no city in Germany safe by day or night from the long arm of the RAF. By flying an equal distance directly east or southeast heavy British or American bombers could reach such far-away targets as Vienna, Bratislava in Slovakia, Breslau or Trieste in Italy near the Yugoslav border.

Danzig, one of the bones of contention between Germany and Poland that led to the war, had been bombed only once before by RAF pilots, who winged through icy weather on the night of November 10, 1940.

The Baltic city had been considered "safe" by German air and naval advisers and Hitler had been making the most of its U-boat-building facilities.

The battered German battleship Gneisenau, nursing wounds inflicted by the RAF at Brest and during the German fleet's dash through the channel, at last accounts was holed up at nearby Gdynia. The British said she would be out of action for the duration.

Since the April assault on Augsburg, the RAF has been concentrating heavier and heavier blows against German U-boats by attacking their bases, construction yards and factories turning out parts for them.

Four attacks—one a 1,000-bomber affair—have been directed against Bremen, one of Hitler's important U-boat bases. Emden has been hit hard three times in recent weeks while Wilhelmshaven, Kiel, Rostock and Hamburg, all ports for submarines involved in the battle of the Atlantic, have felt successive RAF blows.

Likewise, Stuttgart, where precision instruments are made for submarines, has been worked over with RAF bombs by night, and American-made Boston has repeatedly blasted by day at St. Nazaire and Le Havre, U-boat refueling and refitting places in France.

Severe Icing Conditions.

Pilots on the Danzig raid reported severe icing conditions.

Near Denmark the planes ran into a cloud with a base as low as 800 feet and the top at 15,000 feet. "Not every navigator was able to find the way and some Lancasters had to turn for home before they could find Danzig," the air ministry said. "A formidable force, and certainly one big enough to do heavy damage, got there."

The crews of the bombers tried all heights from 50 feet up to 20,000.

The Lancasters reached Danzig in a thunderstorm and, although it was not dark, the ground defenses turned on their searchlights.

"As I came toward the target I ran into a field of flak," one pilot reported. "I came down first to 2,500 feet and then right down, skimming over roofs. I saw the flak going over the top of the Lancasters and hitting houses on the other side."

Bounce Off Roof.

"Over the target I saw a number of other Lancasters. My bomb aimer was sure he had the submarine yards on his sight."

"I saw some fires burning well. We did not run into fine weather until we were well on the way home."

Other pilots reported skimming down to 50 feet over the port and shooting up ships in the harbor after dropping bombs.

In the attack on Flensburg, which took place shortly before Danzig, delayed action bombs were dropped from house level. One Lancaster tore a great hole in its fuselage and damaged its propellers when it bounced off the roof of one house.

Bits of brick from the house were lodged in the cockpit but the plane returned safely, the air ministry said.

At home, it was said authoritatively that two German fighters dropped bombs this afternoon on a southeast coast area, causing a small number of casualties.

Nazis Stress Training of Glider Troops

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—An estimate that between 12,000 and 18,000 glider and parachute troops are trained yearly by the Germans was made today by the War Department in a report on Nazi airborne war operations.

There are in addition to glider pilots, and to airborne infantry, which are troops simply assigned for air transportation.

From the attention devoted to this phase of air training, the War Department said, it was evident the Nazi high command considers gliders a vital part of aerial invasion tactics.

A German glider regiment, the report said, has three battalions of four companies each. Three of the companies are armed with rifles, and the fourth with heavier weapons such as machineguns and mortars. Each regiment also has a 13th company equipped with 75 millimeter howitzers and a 14th company armed with 37 millimeter antitank weapons.

The gliders usually are towed singly or in pairs, although the report said larger tows may be used. The ordinary glider for tactical use carries 10 fully armed soldiers. One larger glider on which "fairly complete" information was obtained is the Gotah, a

Couple Robs Man Of $180; Leaves $1

Leon Wilburn, 24, a market operator, yesterday told police two "considerate" men robbed him of $180 a short time after he closed his market at Edgewood avenue and Wilburn street.

Wilburn said he was standing on the corner when the men approached, and without a word, slugged him, knocking him unconscious. Upon regaining consciousness, Wilburn said, he found a dollar bill in his lap, but the bank roll had disappeared.

"They were considerate to leave me a dollar for carfare," Wilburn said.

Sugar To Be Allowed To Avoid Food Wastage

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration today authorized its state directors to grant increased sugar supplies to food manufacturers whenever necessary to avoid wastage of fresh fruit and vegetables.

The concession was hedged, however, with instructions to the state officials to make sure the sugar content of any such production could not be reduced.

Hollywood Comedians Worry Their Way To Top Screen Rating

By Louella Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, July 12.—Do you worry?

If so, don't worry too much about it. You're worrying along in pretty expensive company.

Eighty per cent of the screen's most successful actors (women should be excepted in this ratio) are very expert worriers. They are perpetually tortured by troubles—real or imaginary. Mostly the latter, it should be added.

The Hollywood merry-go-round is the bumpiest apparatus of its kind in the universe, and those who ride it to stardom pay an enormous toll in torn nervous systems.

In spite of the lush sunshine and the balmy nights, there is probably more insomnia per square block in Hollywood than anywhere else in the world. They don't exactly wake up screaming out here, but plenty of topnotchers toss and brood fitfully, far into the early hours.

COMEDIANS DO MOST WORRYING

As a group, the comedians do far and away the best job of worrying in Hollywood. Fellows like Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Abbott and Costello and Red Skelton find little rest from a never-ending task of scraping up enough funny material to fit into both their picture and radio shows.

The average actor is handed a script, which he sets to memory and recites before the camera and mike. After that he can relax. But not the picture-radio comic. All day long, everything he sees or hears must be considered a possible source of gag material.

Hope seldom calms down. He is a dynamo on the movie set, in the commissary and in the radio station. In addition to his screen and radio work, he makes more Army camp shows than any actor in town. Doctors have warned him repeatedly to take it easier.

Skelton, a comparative newcomer to the comic field, but one of its most successful, is also a bundle of nervous energy. He eats, sleeps and dreams gags. It is apparent from the way he tries out new gags on his friends that he loves his work.

Watching Abbott and Costello on the screen or listening to their radio programs, one would never guess that the job of coming up with their material would get them down. But, alone in their rehearsal rooms, they become first rate floor pacers and finger nail biters—which is only a natural let-down from the breakneck speed with which they travel on the sound stage.

JACK BENNY HOLDS HIGH SCORE

Jack Benny, rated by various polls as the funniest actor in show business, is undoubtedly the most intense worrier of the group. Radio and stage appearances don't bother Jack too much, but on a movie set he is in a perpetual stew. Everything about a film studio frightens and worries him; the cameras, the microphones, his scripts, the actors, his entrance and exits and, most of all, his hands.

We watched him on the torture rack during much of the production of "George Washington Slept Here," in which he was teamed with Ann Sheridan. Miss Sheridan is one of the least worried individuals in show business. Hence, they make a splendid working combination.

When Director Bill Keighley suggested that Jack should play a certain way and Jack tried it, there was always a black moment. "Don't you think," Jack would fret, "that it would be funnier, Bill, if I did it this way, instead?" And he would proceed to demonstrate his own method of playing the scene.

A CONSTANTLY CHANGING MIND

Keighley, an old hand with worrying players, would agreeably give in, suggesting that Jack try it his own way. Jack would do so, then weigh the two approaches to the scene and, invariably, request that the scene be shot both ways. After this was done, there came the terrifying moment when Jack would have to decide which of the two (or maybe three or four) ways was best. Often he would pick a certain one, with Keighley agreeing, only to change his mind completely a little later. Keighley would agree to this, too, but what Jack didn't know was that the director had made the switch on his own, sensing that his troubled star would sooner or later change his mind.

When the fateful decision was finally made, the next scene would be readied, giving Jack a few moments in which to do some real worrying. While Miss Sheridan and the rest of the cast killed time in their favorite gin-rummy manner, Jack would take the time off to pace the floor, chew his cigar to bits and glare at his feet.

Jack is never particular what he worries about. It may be the war, or the fact that the tires on his car are beginning to need retreading. Maybe his guests won't have a good time at the house that night. Possibly his radio script writers, from whom he may have heard nothing for a few hours, are really missing. Just possibly he didn't play that kidding scene with Ann Sheridan the day before, with the correct amount of savoir faire.

NO NEED TO WORRY

Actually, Jack Benny is the one person in show business who need not worry. The public long ago put its stamp of approval on him as America's ace comic. So long as he doesn't play his violin, he's surefire in any branch of entertainment he attempts. His millions of radio fans have been loyal rooters for years. The movie public brings him back for picture after picture. His health is good. His bank account is quite a thing to glance at. He could quit show business today and live luxuriously for all his years to come.

Come to think of it, maybe more screen and radio stars should go in for this worrying business. Look what it has done for fellows like Benny, Hope, Skelton and Abbott and Costello!

Heaviness Over Chest Is Danger Signal

By Dr. William Brady.

What, in your opinion, would cause heart disease to develop in a man who was apparently perfectly well and until death from coronary thrombosis had never lost a day from business on account of illness? (Inquires a widow.)

He was 68 years old and never had felt any sign of trouble until three months before his death, and then only a heavy feeling over his chest when he walked—the feeling would pass off in 5 or 10 minutes if he sat still. The only thing he ever did to excess was smoking a pipe, but he did not inhale.

Before we forget it, ma'am, let's mention here that it matters little whether a smoker inhales or does not inhale, so far as the effect on health is concerned. Whatever component of tobacco smoke it may be that affects health it is absorbed through the mucous membrane lining of the mouth, even though the smoke goes no farther into the respiratory tract. Still more is absorbed or still more rapidly if the smoke passes through the nose also, and of course if any smoke is actually inhaled into the windpipe or bronchial tubes absorption is increased in proportion with the area of mucous membrane exposed to the smoke. But it is an error to imagine a smoker doesn't get the effect of tobacco smoke if he doesn't "inhale."

he did not inhale, but just smoked continuously until he felt that sensation of gas in the stomach and a desire to burp. Then he would stop smoking for a while. Among his intimate friends he was always noted for his exceptional strength and rugged health. (Mrs. O. A.)

Come, come, now, ma'am, we must leave the romance out of the discussion. If friends imagined the man had exceptional strength and rugged health either they were flattering him or maybe just expressing the common notion of what constitutes health. A man who suffers a heavy feeling over his chest when he walks surely hasn't the kind of health we call health. As for strength, if you mean physical, muscular strength, that has nothing to do with health status or the condition of the heart or with any kind of cardiovascular disease.

I have cogitated this question at some length since your letter came, ma'am, and have decided to say what I think about it in a series of talks, hoping I may not alarm any reader more than enough to induce him or her to go straightway and have a proper medical examination.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

It's Like Castor Oil on Pancakes.

What sort of cod liver oil do you suggest for children? I am giving them Oleum Personorum, but they hate taking it. It would plain cod liver oil be as good? (Mrs. A. L.)

Answer—It seems a severe punishment—what have the children done to deserve it? I'd give 'em tasteless or pleasant-tasting vitamin D instead of fish liver oil, plain or fancy.

Series of Firm Refusals Will Best Discourage Unwelcome Attention

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I am in distress. I am a young girl in love with a married man who has a child. I have been with him many times and each time he tells me he loves me and he has also proven it in many ways. He loves his baby very much, but does not seem to care anything at all for his wife, although he is very good to her. She does not know about our affair and really seems to like me.

I have asked this man to stop seeing me and let us forget about each other, but he tells me if we quit that he will never be satisfied. He tells me he loves me better than anybody. I do not want to cause any trouble between them, do not want to break up their home. He is with me every chance he can get and will not date anyone else and it seems as if I am the only girl he has ever dated regularly. What must I do? Is there anything I can do to change his affection for me, so that we can just be friends?

WORRIED.

The best thing to do would be to stop seeing him. You say you are "asked" him to stop seeing you. You are being too gentle with him and acting as though you wanted him to continue. You will have to use force and be the one who puts the stop to the dates. I think the entire thing is your fault for allowing it to go along so long. By continuing to see him, it stands to reason that he thinks you wish to continue the affair. You will have to use force when you tell him that you demand that he stop coming to see you. Do not give him dates. Be out when he comes. Do not talk to him when he calls you on the telephone.

As for wanting to put the acquaintance on the friendly basis, the best thing to do would be to try to include the wife in the little associations. Since she seems to like you, you have a fine opening to include her in anything you wish to do socially. Get yourself another beau and the four of you (the other couple and you two) could have a very nice time. If you appear to be interested in some one else, I think it would give your married admirer the idea that you are not in the least interested in him and that you are placing him in the same category as just another man whom you know. Try to interest yourself in some one else, and something else so that you will not have any time to play around or talk to him.

GIRL MUST WORK AT BEING POPULAR

Dear Dixie: Our problem is how to become popular with the boys. We are nice looking and act nice, too. One of us is a blonde and the other two are brunettes. We are all 16 and are small for our age. Do you suppose the boys think we are too young? We are about five feet tall and weigh about 115. We go to parties and the boys seem to enjoy being with us, but they never ask us for dates. Suggest something to us.

COUNTRY GIRLS.

You might try to figure out what it is the other girls have that you don't. You might make an analysis of yourselves and see just what it is that keeps you from being popular. Are you interested in everything? Do you listen to the boys with rapt interest and admiration when they tell you things? Do you let the boys know that you think they are wonderful and that you like them? Everyone likes to think that they are admired and that goes double with the boys.

Sometimes when you are with the boys why not ask them to come by to see you? You do not have to be too definite about it or too insistent, but just casual and friendly. The two of you together could arrange some sort of entertainment to gather the crowd and in that way have a nice time.

Another thing you could do would be to find out what particular phase of sports or other interests they enjoy and make a play for that. I do not think your age nor your size has anything to do with your not being popular. Girls have to make their own popularity. They cannot sit back and expect it to come knocking at the door. Try to figure out your best points and emphasize them. If you are good dancers, make yourself an expert. If you have beautiful hair, concentrate on its arrangement and make it look better than the other girls'. If you are the feminine type, do not go in for sporty, masculine attire. If you are the dainty type, do not try to be the great outdoor girl.

Have you been admiring bordered printed fabrics for summer frocks? Then follow the example of Ann Baxter, RKO star, who wears a bordered print in a classic shirt-waist dress! This model has a set-in belt, cinching the waistline and a skirt with gathered fullness. Pattern No. 1600 can be purchased for 16 cents. him. But now I have forgotten what the dose is, and would like to have it in case of future need. (Mrs. H. M.)

Answer—Dose is about the same as the dose of castor oil, for the same purpose. It is a break for the kid. Give it to him instead of castor oil, with the best wishes of his friend, O' Doc Brady, who was a kid himself once and remembers with a shudder the castor oil his well-meaning but misguided parents pressed on him whenever he looked white around the gills, which, seems, was frequently.

Vitamin A Helps Eyes To Adjust to a Blackout

By Ida Jean Kain.

It is vitally important that we keep our cities dimmed out—particularly our coastal cities. The flash of a light can be seen from a mile away in the sky and a match that flares for only one one-thousandth of a second can be seen for miles. So we are going to have to learn to see in the dark.

Science says we see differently in the dark and that it is possible to train our eyes to night vision. If you are an air raid warden, turn your lights out half an hour before you go out on the streets. And instead of looking directly at the object you are trying to see, look above or below it, or to one side.

In the dimout, the foods that prevent night blindness are those rich in vitamins A and B2. You can be fairly certain that you get enough of these vitamins on your balanced menus. You might keep in mind that if you are getting enough of the vitamins, more will not help you to see better, or improve your personality, or make your hair curly.

It is very easy to get enough vitamin A. There are liberal amounts of it in green leafy vegetables, yellow fruits and vegetables, whole milk, cream, butter, egg yolk and yellow cheese. Then there are the specialty sources—cod and other fish liver oils and their concentrates.

But even with all these sources a good many people do not get enough vitamin A and inability to see in the dark is one of the first signs of a deficiency. The over-weights who go on a lopsided diet are particularly apt to miss out on this essential. They want to leave off calories so they cut down on butter and cream, take skimmed milk instead of whole milk, and fail to eat a green leafy vegetable. If you are on a low calorie diet, you should have a serving of cooked greens and a raw green salad every day.

Vitamin B2, also called riboflavin, is also concerned in good vision. The richest sources of this vitamin are milk, green and leafy vegetables, pork, ham and meat organs like liver, kidneys and sweetbreads. The specialty sources of riboflavin are compressed yeast, dried brewer's yeast, and their concentrates.

On a balanced diet you don't have to worry about getting enough of any of the vitamins. But it is well worth your while to check your menus now and then to see that they are balanced. Otherwise, your efficiency in every direction is impaired.

Send large stamped return envelope to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for the "Count Your Vitamins" chart and make these vitamin-rich foods comprise a large portion of your menus.

Paintings by Gifted Atlantans To Be Exhibited This Week

ART LOVERS will have a "Roman holiday" this week attending the midsummer exhibition of paintings by Atlanta members of The Georgians, a state-wide organization composed of talented artists. The exhibition opens this afternoon at 4 o'clock with a tea in Rich's Magnolia Room, and continues through Saturday. It is held under the sponsorship of the Modern Art Study Club.

The roster of exhibiting artists will include such notables as Athos Menaboni, Mrs. Marjorie Bush-Brown, George Ramey, Ben and Nuli Shute, Roy Rogers, Harold Sheffield, Ernest DeVane, Wendall Jackson, Ernestine Jackson, LeRoy Jackson, Mrs. E. Paxton Oliver, Katherine Comfort, George Cress and Rihard Green. They will receive the guests, many of whom will be so captivated by the extraordinary beauty of the paintings that they will purchase one or more for their homes.

Hostesses will be members of the Art Study Group, including Mesdames R. F. Foreman Jr., Jack M. Jones, Montague Boyd, William Sutherland, Sidney Servis, Bruce Woodruff, B. F. Cossins, Lon Grove, Hinton Longino and William Parker Junior.

Attractive announcements of the exhibit have been issued to the public. The apple green cover of each is adorned with a reproduction of the painting, "Georgia Magnolias," by Ben Shute. Atlantans will forget temporarily the horrors of war while viewing the paintings, which are brilliant-hued testimonials of the artists' skill.

IN ITS column called "Socially Speaking," the Miami Herald recently carried an interesting story about how Dot Smith (Mrs. Lindsey J. Hopkins) has managed to beat the gas and tire shortage.

"She simply transferred her transportation problem from the ground to water," the story explained, "acquired a rowboat, and each morning finds her rowing from her home on Sunset island to the neighboring homes of friends. She takes with her a group of chairs, including Martha Shuey, Freddie Warner, and her own child, Lindsey, and away they go. As a result the children are learning to row, Mrs. Lindsey is getting daily exercise, she has help when she tires of the oars. And the nicest part of it all, the group just ties up at docks along the route, and there's a pause for refreshments whenever and wherever that part of the morning's outing is indicated."

Recent news of Dot says that she and Lindsey expect to come to Atlanta for a short visit the latter part of July. Then early in August, Dot, her two small sons, Lindsey III and Carter Wayne, and her mother, Mrs. James Allen Smith, will go to Hendersonville, N. C., for a month's stay.

Dot is very active in defense work and is at present serving as instructor for a large Red Cross class at Miami Beach.

MEMBERS of the Mimosa Garden Club had an unusual treat in store when Mrs. Price Gilbert invited them to be her guests for the last meeting. Instead of entertaining at her home on Wesley, or at the club, Mrs. Gilbert had the entire group meet at the handsome home of her bachelor son, Price Gilbert, on Arden road.

Because of the "party" atmosphere, business was quickly shelved by Mrs. Edgar Neely, the new president. Mrs. Errol Hay resigned to give her full time to the presidency of the Junior League.

An interesting feature of the occasion was the presentation by Price of colored movies of his mother's lovely garden, as the guests sipped cool drinks in the patio. Another movie of unusual interest showed scenes of the entrance to Price's garden, made during the four seasons of the year.

Mimosa sprays, combined with rubber plant foliage, formed the decorative motif in the home, and in the patio blue hydrangeas and yellow lilies in sky blue glass containers were reflected in the swimming pool.

Roll in the Game

By JACK TROY

For War Relief BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 12.—Among the finer things done by a baseball team this season was Little Rock's decision to turn over $500 to war relief.

The fans made up a pot of $500 to give Manager Willis Hudlin on Hudlin night, and Hudlin immediately turned it over to the players, who, in turn, were to put the money to work where it would do the most good.

When the fans learned about it they made up another pot, collecting $20 for each player and presenting Hudlin with more than $200 worth of gifts.

There is a fine spirit of camaraderie on the Little Rock baseball club and there is no shortage of talent. For this latter reason, especially, Skipper Paul Richards believes the Pebbles will be tough to head off the pennant race.

Indications are that five or six teams will continue to fight it out for the flag, providing, perhaps, the hottest stretch battle the Southern League has ever enjoyed.

It is a year in which the breaks will be predominant. The team that gets them more than likely will win.

And the Shaughnessy play-off will simply be a mad scramble.

Knots and All Back in 1920 Joe Engel, scouting for Washington, had his eye on Bing Miller, of Little Rock. Old Man Allen, of Knoxville, then ran the Little Rock ball club and Kid Elberfeld was the manager.

Allen wanted $7,500 for Miller and finally Engel told him, "I'll pay you that much if you'll throw in a player." Engel chose the player, a catcher.

That night Engel learned through a friend in one of the postal companies, that Pittsburgh had just made an offer of $12,000.

Soon after returning to his hotel there came a knock on Engel's door and there was Owner Allen and Manager Elberfeld.

They had come to talk about Miller.

"Joe, we can't conscientiously sell you Miller," they said. "He has a physical defect. We've asked him to come up and show you."

So Miller came up and stripped and they pointed out a lump on one of his legs. Engel liked the Miller build and he recalled the time he and Joe Cantillon had gone to Kentucky to buy mules.

"I appreciate your honesty," Engel said, thinking of the Pittsburgh offer which they didn't know he knew about, "but I'll take him—knots and all."

Engel sold the catcher he'd chosen in the deal for $5,000. And Miller, of course, was a great star.

Final Trip Jasper Donaldson is taking his final trip with the Crackers as traveling secretary for the duration.

Donaldson, who is to be a chief petty officer in the Navy, enters the service on July 26. He'll be stationed at Norfolk for a while.

The Crackers will miss "Seabee" Donaldson, whom the players call "Meal Money."

Always one of the most popular men connected with a baseball team is the secretary who has the power to make advances to tide the boys over.

Donaldson's last trip appropriately takes him to New Orleans, the favorite town of baseball people.

"I'm going to miss Cracker baseball," Donaldson said, "but it's a privilege to be able to serve my country. I'll look forward to coming back after the war."

Crackers Beat Barons, 5-2, 12-8

Victory Gives Atlanta Clean Series Sweep

Cortes Wins 7th, Mertz 10th; Team Off Till Wednesday.

By JACK TROY, Constitution Sports Editor.

RICKWOOD FIELD, BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 12.—The Barons again were no match for the home back kings of the Southern League, the Atlanta Crackers, today, and by winning both games of a double-header, 5 to 2 and 12 to 8, the defending champions swept the four-game series and made the record 18 wins in the last 22 games.

Last time here the Crackers dropped four straight, but this time the Barons were able to make only one of the four games close.

Rene Cortes racked up his seventh victory in the first game, besting Ed Heuser and Mike Schultz. Cortes allowed only six hits.

Today's crowd of 5,800 was the second largest of the season in Birmingham.

MERTZ ERRATIC. Jim Mertz was plenty erratic in the second game, but, for a change, the Crackers went out and got him a flock of runs. The Crackers went for the extra bases in both games. They had a total of 16 hits and 10 runs, with Mertz for extra bases.

LeGrant Scott hit a homer in the first game, putting the Crackers out in front for keeps.

Mike Dejan hit homers in each game.

Bob Malloy started the second game and left a nine-run deficit for his successor, Rocky Stone. Carmel Castle, erstwhile outfielder, made his Barons debut on the mound.

The win for Mertz was his tenth of the season.

The Crackers will enjoy off days for the next two days, opening an important series Wednesday night in New Orleans.

TO SEE ALL-STAR GAME. Skipper Paul Richards and President Earl Mann will attend the 1942 All-Star game of the Southeastern League Monday night.

After the game today Mertz, who had made a terrible throw that was responsible for some of the Barons scoring, was called back to the mound and pitched 30 minutes practicing the throw to second, with Richards coaching.

Little Rock kept the game and a half lead over Atlanta by taking a double-header from Nashville, but the Crackers definitely showed they were pennant contenders of first rank.

Up to this series they had found the Barons tough to beat.

The Crackers started off as they did on Saturday, scoring early and often. Three runs resulted from singles by Letch and Deal and a home run by Scott. The latter drive sailed over the fence in front of the Negro stands in the right.

Letch started a remarkable double play in the Barons' half. The first hit went to his left to make a great stop of Conway's hot grounder, threw to Blakeney forcing Blakeney to throw to Browne and Blakeney fired the ball to Browne in time to double Conway.

Dejan hit a mighty homer in the second inning, putting the Crackers in a position to win. The ball landed near the top of the Negro stands in right. There was no body on base at the time.

Consecutive doubles by Browne and Smith gave the Crackers their fourth run in the fourth inning. So far, however, the Crackers had been right up the Crackers' alley.

CRACKERS SCORE. There was another Cracker run in the sixth. Deal led off with a single, advanced on an infield out and an error and scored on Smith's fielder's choice.

Loebach called Kober a "home" from the bench in the sixth and Kober requested him to leave the park.

West led off the seventh with a walk. Goldstein fielded to center. Harrington, batting for Beeler, also walked. Castle batted for Heusser and flied to right. Then Gamble's clutch single scored West.

There was no further scoring. SECOND GAME. The Crackers got off to a handsome start in the second game, capitalizing on Barons misplays and a couple of hits to score five runs. Glock walked. Letch hit to Harrington, who threw wild to second. Deal lined to Dejan, who dropped the ball. Scott walked. Harrington forced in Glock. Browne forced Scott, and Letch scored. Richards drove in Deal and Browne with a double and himself scored on a two-base hit by Blakeney. Mertz, ninth man up, was thrown out by Polly.

The Barons fought back and scored three runs in their half on a double by Vollmer, a triple by Gamble and 380-foot homer by Matzak.

Mertz, apparently startled by having such a fine lead, was nicked for a fourth run in the third. After two outs he hit Dejan in the back and walked Polly. Goldstein drove in Dejan with a single. Harrington flied to right, leaving the tying and winning runs on base.

However, Mertz waited out Malloy and drew a walk in the fourth. Malloy sacrificed and Glock singled, scoring Dejan. Letch drove in Dejan with a single. Harrington flied to right, leaving the tying and winning runs on base.

U. S. Puts Okay On Big Game, Deer Hunting

Wild Life Chief Says Elk, Deer Taking Forage of Cattle, Sheep.

DENVER, July 12.—(P)—Big game hunting in the United States has received the full sanction of the federal government—war or no war—and what's more, a new industry may stem from it.

Dr. H. L. Shantz, chief of the Division of Wildlife Management of the United States Forest Service, says that heretofore as many as 1,200,000 deer hides have been imported annually from Thailand and South America.

But with imports reduced to virtually needed goods, hides such as these—which are manufactured into leather worth almost twice as much as leather from beef hides—are crowded out of the import trade.

"Americans have never saved their deer hides in commercial quantities," Shantz explained. "But this year many states are trying to arrange a market for these hides."

While the rubber shortage and the press of war work will keep many hunters out of the field, Shantz emphasized that hunting must continue—must even expand for livestock to be protected.

"In almost all parts of the west," he said, "state and forestry officials are apprehensive of the growing numbers of deer and elk that are competing with cattle and sheep for mountain forage."

Many states are meeting the situation by extending the hunting season and liberalizing bag limits on deer and elk.

Gets Big Area Needed This Year, Says McNutt

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(P)—Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the Manpower Commission reported today that 12,500,000 persons are now actively engaged in direct war work, and predicted 5,000,000 more would be needed in the next six months.

"General labor shortages are apparent in many war industry centers," he said, adding that "increased employment of women and other persons not now in the labor force will be necessary to meet the demands for war workers during the next year and a half."

Total employment in the United States now over 50,000,000, the largest in history, surpassing even the boom days of early 1929. Nevertheless, the last report of the Works Project Administration estimated that 2,600,000 persons still were unemployed, the greater part of them not possessing skills needed in the war production lines.

Congress recently appropriated over $90,000,000 to give vocational training to 3,000,000 persons during the next 12 months.

McNutt told newspapermen he expected to announce this week a new Manpower Commission program for co-operative action in war industry centers to conserve and utilize manpower in crucial jobs, through agreements reached by industry managements, labor unions and governmental agencies.

The new war employment estimate of 12,500,000, as of July, compared with estimates of 9,000,000 on April 1 and 6,900,000 on January 1. The average war employment for the last three months of 1941 was 5,300,000. The fourth quarter figure in 1940 was 1,400,000.

Pierre Laval had received Pinkney S. Tuck, United States charge d'affaires, yesterday to continue previous conversations which the Paris press said concerned the status of French warships interned at Alexandria.

During his last interview, the Paris newspaper Nouveaux Temps said: "Official circles naturally remain very discreet on results achieved but it is known on the other hand that the Axis powers have guaranteed (the fleet's) independence in armistice clauses."

"Any solution of Anglo-Saxon origin would consist of placing our ships in a state of dependence could not be entertained by the French government."

Surviving Madagascar Fleet Units at Toulon.
TOULON, occupied since June 12.—(P)—Two small French war craft, the surviving French units of the Battle of Courrier Bay, Madagascar, arrived here today with more than 200 men after a daring 11,000-mile voyage from Madagascar.

To the welcome of whistles and the full regalia put on at short notice by the entire fleet at this French naval base, the 1,400-ton submarine Le Gloireux and the 2,000-ton colonial escort vessel D'Arville steamed into port. They had come around Cape of Good Hope and through the Straits of Gibraltar.

The brief resistance of French naval units to the British at Courrier Bay cost the French an auxiliary cruiser, an escort ship and two submarines.

Police Recapture Accused Slayer.
WASHINGTON, July 12.—(P)—John Eugene Eklund, 35-year-old accused sniper-slave who came off a police van from a police van Friday night, was captured today.

Nathan Ephraim, member of the police for only a few months, and Carl Goetzinger, an auxiliary policeman, spotted him as he came out of a drug store in northwest Washington. Eklund surrendered without resistance, police said.

The prisoner said he freed his hands of the cuffs after five hours of filing.

He will return to court tomorrow to hear the sealed verdict of a jury which was unaware of his flight when it rendered its decision yesterday.

Georgia Dentists Will Attend Meeting.

5 Million More War Workers Needed This Year, Says McNutt

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(P)—Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the Manpower Commission reported today that 12,500,000 persons are now actively engaged in direct war work, and predicted 5,000,000 more would be needed in the next six months.

"General labor shortages are apparent in many war industry centers," he said, adding that "increased employment of women and other persons not now in the labor force will be necessary to meet the demands for war workers during the next year and a half."

Total employment in the United States now over 50,000,000, the largest in history, surpassing even the boom days of early 1929. Nevertheless, the last report of the Works Project Administration estimated that 2,600,000 persons still were unemployed, the greater part of them not possessing skills needed in the war production lines.

Congress recently appropriated over $90,000,000 to give vocational training to 3,000,000 persons during the next 12 months.

McNutt told newspapermen he expected to announce this week a new Manpower Commission program for co-operative action in war industry centers to conserve and utilize manpower in crucial jobs, through agreements reached by industry managements, labor unions and governmental agencies.

The new war employment estimate of 12,500,000, as of July, compared with estimates of 9,000,000 on April 1 and 6,900,000 on January 1. The average war employment for the last three months of 1941 was 5,300,000. The fourth quarter figure in 1940 was 1,400,000.

Pierre Laval had received Pinkney S. Tuck, United States charge d'affaires, yesterday to continue previous conversations which the Paris press said concerned the status of French warships interned at Alexandria.

During his last interview, the Paris newspaper Nouveaux Temps said: "Official circles naturally remain very discreet on results achieved but it is known on the other hand that the Axis powers have guaranteed (the fleet's) independence in armistice clauses."

"Any solution of Anglo-Saxon origin would consist of placing our ships in a state of dependence could not be entertained by the French government."

Surviving Madagascar Fleet Units at Toulon.
TOULON, occupied since June 12.—(P)—Two small French war craft, the surviving French units of the Battle of Courrier Bay, Madagascar, arrived here today with more than 200 men after a daring 11,000-mile voyage from Madagascar.

To the welcome of whistles and the full regalia put on at short notice by the entire fleet at this French naval base, the 1,400-ton submarine Le Gloireux and the 2,000-ton colonial escort vessel D'Arville steamed into port. They had come around Cape of Good Hope and through the Straits of Gibraltar.

The brief resistance of French naval units to the British at Courrier Bay cost the French an auxiliary cruiser, an escort ship and two submarines.

Police Recapture Accused Slayer.
WASHINGTON, July 12.—(P)—John Eugene Eklund, 35-year-old accused sniper-slave who came off a police van from a police van Friday night, was captured today.

Nathan Ephraim, member of the police for only a few months, and Carl Goetzinger, an auxiliary policeman, spotted him as he came out of a drug store in northwest Washington. Eklund surrendered without resistance, police said.

The prisoner said he freed his hands of the cuffs after five hours of filing.

He will return to court tomorrow to hear the sealed verdict of a jury which was unaware of his flight when it rendered its decision yesterday.

Georgia Dentists Will Attend Meeting.
MACON, Ga., July 12.—(P)—With the annual convention of the American Dental Association scheduled for Boston, Mass., postponed because of the war, Georgia delegates will attend a special business meeting at St. Louis, August 24-28.

Dr. R. H. Murphy, Georgia Association secretary, said the delegates are Dr. J. Russell Mitchell, of Atlanta; Dr. W. H. Banks, of Montezuma; Dr. R. H. Holmes, of Macon; and Dr. A. C. Tuck, of Thomasville.

Stores To Get New 'Victory' Models Soon

Stores To Get New 'Victory' Models Soon

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(P)—"Victory" models of household appliances and other articles manufactured in standardized form and bearing no brand names may make their appearance on the markets before the war is much older, Price Administrator Leon Henderson has told congress.

Publication of his testimony before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee last week disclosed he told it diversion of nonmilitary production into plants that could not get war contracts was going forward as rapidly as possible.

"What they may mean," he testified, "is that victory models will be made by one manufacturer and distributed by other organizations in the field. It will undoubtedly mean simplification, standardization of many, many manufactured items. It is one of the most acute problems that faces the civilian economy."

The occupations are listed in a bulletin sent to all state directors by national headquarters, selective service system, which also outlines conditions under which students in such fields may be classified or deferred from military service as "necessary men."

The list includes: Accountants, chemists, economists, engineers, aeronautical, automotive, chemical, electrical, heating, ventilating, refrigerating and air conditioning, marine mechanical, mining and metallurgical (including mineral technologists), radio, safety and transportation—air, highway, railroad, water; geophysicists, industrial managers, mathematicians, mechanical engineers, architects, personnel administrators, physicists (including astronomers), psychologists and statisticians.

Early Sentence Seen For Nazi Saboteurs.
WASHINGTON, July 12.—(P)—Eight Nazi saboteurs may learn this week what penalty they must pay for landing from U-boats on Long Island and Florida beaches with cash and explosives for an abortive sabotage campaign against American war industries.

The prosecution is expected to complete by tomorrow or Tuesday the case it has been unfolding before a military court since last Wednesday, and the defense probably will take only a couple of days to present whatever evidence it may have, including the prisoners' own testimony. Before any sentence of the court can be carried out, however, the findings must be reviewed by President Roosevelt.

Desert Armies Lay Heaviest Barrage of War

Aussies, South Africans Capture Over 1,000 Prisoners.

By HARRY CROCKETT.

WITH AUSTRALIAN AND SOUTH AFRICAN TROOPS ON THE ALAMEIN FRONT, July 11. (Delayed)—(P)—Australian and South African troops have captured more than 1,000 Axis prisoners in counterattacking spurts here in the Egyptian desert, but right now one of the heaviest artillery barrages of the war is being laid down by both armies.

Crouching here in a slit trench on the edge of the Mediterranean, the scene looking inland is one of great irregular sand dunes shooting into the skies where shells have landed.

Sitting near by is Alan Lokes, 23, one of two Americans in the desert wearing an Australian uniform.

Lokes, a native of Richmond, Va., who later lived in Los Angeles, told me he met a captive German who turned out to be a former Bundist who had trained in New York and New Jersey Bund camps before he returned to Germany—and the Nazi army.

"He's pretty disgusted with Army life by now," Lokes grinned. "We find ourselves shouting at each other to make ourselves heard over the crash of artillery shells and the roar of American bombers overhead."

A moment later the Yanks have dropped their loads and the echoing growl of their crashing bombs on the Axis lines ahead is clearly audible.

The German Stukas have been dive-bombing us, too, but the RAF is taking many care of them every time they come over.

Lokes told me that another American with the Aussies is Michael O'Ryan, 30, of Syracuse, N. Y., an anti-tank gunner here, who once served in the U. S. Navy.

Coming up a shell-pocked road to the front we passed columns of prisoners. Most of them were Italians, but here and there was a scowling green-clad German.

Barrett Assigned To Camp Croft

Assignment of Robert T. Barrett, of 2528 Alston drive, as assistant Red Cross field director at Camp Croft, S. C., was announced at Alexandria, Va., yesterday by Frank Grayson, eastern area director of Red Cross military and naval welfare service.

Barrett, who recently was appointed to the field director staff of the Red Cross, has just completed a special training course at national headquarters in Washington.

Before his Red Cross appointment, Barrett was an inspector at Sears, Roebuck & Company and a salesman with Lever Brothers & Company. A native of Atlanta, Barrett attended Marist College and received two and a half years of training at the University of Georgia Evening College.

Gifts to Foreign Missions Increase

Methodists of the Atlanta area, comprised of Georgia and most of Florida, contributed $19,236 to the Red Cross, has just reported in the fiscal year ended May 31, the Rev. O. W. Auman, treasurer of the General Commission on World Service and Finance, announced yesterday in Chicago.

This is an increase of $20,947 over the previous year, according to Bishop Arthur J. Moore, head of the Atlanta area.

The country's nearly 8,000,000 Methodists gave $4,324,150 for foreign and home mission projects, a gain of $157,888 over 1941. Part of this increase was attributed to the growing interest among laymen in the missionary program during wartime.

INDIES HERO—Commander Paul H. Talbot, leader of a daring attack on numerically superior Japanese forces of Balikpapan, Borneo, receives the Navy Cross from Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, right. Talbot's destroyer division sank five or six enemy ships and inflicted severe damage upon others, then withdrew without loss. The action occurred on the night of January 24, 1942, during the desperate Indies battle.

Bund Brought Aliens Into U.S., Paper Reveals

200 Nazis, Fascists Are Smuggled Into Nation, Mirror Says.

NEW YORK, June 12.—(P)—The Daily Mirror says federal examination of German-American Bund files and information from arrested Bundsmen have disclosed that the Bund smuggled 200 Nazi and Fascist aliens into the United States during 1940 and 1941.

No information was available as to how many of these aliens have been captured, the Mirror states, adding it was admitted that a considerable number are still large and are being sought.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested 158 men and women Bundists on Saturday, many of whom were taken to Ellis Island as aliens.

The Mirror reports that many of the Germans smuggled into this country found a convenient method of entry by signing up as crew members on ships. A fairly large number had received instruction in espionage, the paper says.

Among them were women who had served as hair dressers, bedroom maids and manicurists.

Many of the Germans reached American ports on ships flying neutral flags, the Mirror asserts, and some of the ships' officers were believed aware of what was going on.

The federal investigation further revealed, the paper reports, that the aliens were provided with money for traveling expenses, "identification cards" and falsified family backgrounds.

Archbishop Urges Just Peace Aims

LONDON, July 12.—(P)—The Archbishop of Canterbury declared today that the war settlement must give the average German the feeling that as long as Germany behaves there is open "to him as full a chance of good-humored life as to anybody else."

In a message read at a mass meeting organized by the German League of Culture, the archbishop said the "crimes of Germany must be punished."

"The decision of the Allied governments to bring to justice those proved guilty of these abominations," the archbishop said, "is a political and military sense very severe but it must also be such as gives to the ordinary German citizen the sense that so long as his state behaves itself there is open to him as full a chance of good-humored life as to anybody else."

Tobacco Workers To Get Pay Raise

NEW YORK, July 12.—(P)—Pay raises will go to 70,000 workers in the tobacco industry under terms of wage orders announced today by L. Metcalf Walling, federal wage hour administrator.

Under the order, effective August 10, workers engaged in the manufacture of cigars, cigarettes, snuff, chewing and smoking tobacco would receive a minimum of 40 cents hourly. Handlers, stemmers and others employed in the preparatory processing of cigar leaf tobacco in dealers' establishments or cigar factories would be paid at least 35 cents.

Rates were based on recommendations of special industry committees.

New York Will Begin Fingerprinting Today

NEW YORK, July 12.—(INS)—The tremendous task of fingerprinting the entire population of New York city will get under way officially tomorrow night.

All New Yorkers have been asked by Mayor LaGuardia to cooperate in the mass fingerprinting plan, which he announced last week as a measure to insure prompt identification of victims in the event of an enemy attack on the city.

Alexandria Speeding Danger Zone Evacuation

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, July 12.—(P)—Abdel Khalek Hassouna Bey, newly appointed military governor of Alexandria, told press correspondents today that evacuation of 14,000 persons in air raid danger zones is being speeded up although the military situation in the western desert "is much more reassuring."

He said public workers, doctors and pharmacists were prohibited from leaving the city without special authorization.

College Pep Rally Technique Spurs Shipyard Bond Sales

PORTLAND, Ore., July 12.—(P)—The old college pep rally stuff, transplanted to the shipyard, has made workers at the Albina Engine & Machine Works buy more war bonds and pound more rivets into Navy hulls.

It sprouted from a seed planted by Al Lake, an electrician turned public relations counsel, and it has grown almost fantastically.

First came a beauty contest for men, an idea of Al, who got to be publicity man largely because Albina, Portland's smallest shipyard with only 2,000 workers, couldn't afford to hire a big shot press agent.

Then Al said "vote for your beauty, but every vote's got to be a 10-cent war stamp."

Ten-cent stamps soon were too small to bother about. Two-biters were next. Before Al knew it votes were being cast with bonds—up to $500.

The bollmakers, the shipfitters and all the other gangs started to rally behind the candidates. Lunch-time parades wound all over the plant. One outfit showed up with a 10-piece band. Another bunch blossomed out next day with 30 pieces. All over the place were signs like: "Hitler covers when he thinks of Powers."

Said George Rodgers, Albina's president: "Nothing has ever happened here that raised morale and construction to such a high pitch."

He should know about production speed because Albina was on the first "B" pennant list announced by the Navy. Foster Wheeler Corporation, New York boiler manufacturers, reported recently that Albina was building more pounds of hull per man hour than any other yard in the country.

And it's all right with the Treasury Department, too. Albina's workers have sunk $91,000 in war bonds since the screwball business started. Eager to get this snowball rolling in shipyards nationwide, the Treasury has asked Al how it's done.

He's darned if he knows. It got away from him a long time ago.

Whoa, Mule! Not Shooting at You

ROSWELL, Ga., July 12.—Cap Westbrooks, local farmer, will be more careful when he kills snakes from now on, he says.

Last week, while shooting a large pilot with his shotgun he accidentally put nine shot into the skin of a fine mule which was grazing in a near-by pasture.

Late Legislator's Kin Found Slain

LEESBURG, Va., July 12.—(P)—Deputy Sheriff D. H. Cooley, of Loudoun county, said Duncan Campbell Killmaster, 16-year-old grandson of the late Representative Philip P. Campbell, of Kansas, was found dead in woods near here today after being missing since Friday.

The body was found by two members of a large group of searchers on a mountainside near the estate of the boy's grandmother. The youth left his grandmother's home Friday afternoon to engage in target practice with a small caliber pistol.

Dr. John A. Gibson, coroner, said Killmaster apparently had tripped over a root and in falling had shot himself accidentally in the temple with his .22 caliber pistol.

New Terrorist Orders Ann

O.K.-SOLDIER,
we'll keep it loaded!

MEN like this from Georgia—110,000 of them in the Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard—are fighting your battles all over the world. But—they can't lick the Nazis and the Japs with empty guns. They need money to buy bullets and bombs and guns and tanks and ships and planes—and clothes and food to keep them strong.

They're asking you to lend this money. Remember, they're offering their lives—they just ask you for the use of your money to buy those vital essentials to win the war for you.

THE workers in Uncle Sam's war factories play a vital part in the Victory effort. They may not wear a uniform or carry a gun, but they're soldiers just the same, making the tools that will crush the enemy. Thousands of war workers are buying Stamps and Bonds every pay day. Are you doing your share? Put that extra energy into your wartime job . . . buy that extra Bond today—and every pay day until Victory brings us peace!
